THE LAST ROLL-CALLS.

What the Issues in this State Really Are.

Necessity of Republicans Looking After the Assembly.

A Few Important Facts About Local Candidates.

Hints for Reform Voters About Canvassing.

How the Greeleyites Hope to Soften the Pain of Defeat.

The Same Fight.

The fight in this State this year is the same fight with Tammany and corruption that we partly won last year. The coalition we are now going to smash was framed in the last Legislature. The Greeleyites agreed to defeat the reform measures and support a Tammany State ticket, if the Democrats would indorse H. G. and help bring back the traitors to the Assembly. The plan is now being carried out. Alvord, the leading Ring Republican last year, has gone over, with a good many others. Depew represents the Ring Republicans on the State ticket. Fenton is figuring for a congenial colleague at Washington, and Hoffman—Ring Governor and party to the bargain—has taken the field for the whole slate. With this arrangement on the Ring side, honest people need be at no loss to tell where they belong.

Give Us a Good Assembly.

No Republican should neglect his Assembly ticket. If we can have a Republican Assembly this year we can perfect reform for this City; we can complete the destruction of the Canal Ring; we can elect a good man for United States Senator. If we let the Assembly slip through our fingers, our work in this State will be nearly in vain. Remember this, and see to it that nothing is wanting to success in your own district.

The Congressional Candidates in the Eighth District.

Mr. John D. Lawson is the Republican candidate for Congress in the Eighth District, and he ought to be earnestly supported and elected by the friends of reform. The only opponent of Mr. Lawson is Charles S. Shaw, a notorious lobbyist at Albany while a member of Assembly last Winter. That Shaw is now endeavoring to represent Murray Hill in Congress only shows the audacity of the man. The voters of Murray Hill owe it to themselves to see that Shaw is defeated.

Pinny Burns.

Matthew T. Brennan's faithful henchman and plant tool, Denis Burns, is the Tammany candidate for Assembly in the Second District of this City. He is opposed by James Dunphy, a nominee of Apollo Hall, who, whatever qualities he may lack, is certainly a far better man for the position. Although no longer a resident of the district, Brennan has worked heaven and earth to maintain the right to be considered the political leader of his former neighbors. Burns is his representative, and a more slavish, grovelling representative of an unscrupulous master it would not be easy to find. We have repeatedly published figures in these columns to prove that Brennan, as Sheriff of this City, has swindled the tax-payers out of considerable sums of money. Of these offenses he now stands convicted in the eyes of all honest men. In view of this fact we maintain that Burns should not be re-elected to the Assembly on Tuesday next.

The Sixteenth Assembly District.

In the Sixteenth Assembly District of this City there are three candidates before the people: William Leimbeer, Republican; Nicholas Haughton, Apollo Hall; Peter Woods, Tammany Hall. Woods has been making a very active canvass through the bar-rooms of the district, and claims to be pretty confident of success. He is a representative of the very worst element of the Tammany Democracy, and should consequently be avoided by respectable voters. Haughton is a much more respectable candidate. However, of the three, Leimbeer is decidedly the best man. He is pledged to the side of reform, and will make a decent representative. In this Assembly District reside quite a number of our best citizens. They have a chance now to assert their power, and ought to avail themselves of it.

Tom Creamer.

Eighty-three gentlemen sign a card to the electors of the Seventh Assembly District, indorsing the integrity of the notorious individual who is the Tammany candidate for Congress.

How any decent citizen of any party can conscientiously recommend a confederate and tool of Tweed, into this fallow Creamer, passes our comprehension. He has grown rich by his participation in the robberies of the Ring. He now holds the lucrative office of Tax Commissioner, which he obtained as part of his price for selling out the Young Democracy at Albany, when they were endeavoring to defeat Tweed's charter. He is doubly false, alternately acting with and betraying both wings of the party. If he gets into Congress it will be to practice in a wider field his well-known arts of venality and jobbery. It would be a lasting disgrace to this Metropolis to have such a Representative at the Capitol to supersede Mr. Ely, who, albeit a Democrat, is an honest and accomplished gentleman.

Creamer's opponent is Conrad Geib, a respectable German, who served last Winter in the State Legislature, and made an unexceptionable and excellent record as a consistent and reliable Reformer. He ought to be supported by the good men of the district of all parties. He will prove a useful member.

A Plot to Defeat.

The World, like many another granny, cannot keep a secret. It has let us into one belonging to the coalition, viz.: that they hope, though beaten in the Presidency, to embarrass the Administration in Congress. This must not be allowed. It would be simple folly to elect Gen. Grant, and fail to back him with a working majority in Congress. Then, from the Democrats in the doubtful districts, Wickham for Crooke in the Fourth, Duke in the Sixth, Dawson in the Eighth, Mellish in the Ninth, Darling in the Tenth, Flagg in the Eleventh, St. John in the Twelfth, Hale in the Seventeenth, and wherever there is a chance of winning. We see best, James Brooks, Fernando Wood, "Big Judge" Connolly, and such fair weather Republicans as these, it we will.

Work in Your Own District.

Give the remainder of the canvass to your own election district. Compare your list of voters; find out who are invalid and must be carried to the polls, and make arrangements for carrying them; find out who are indifferent, and make arrangements to have them accompanied to the polls by some friend, if possible. Let each local committee distribute the work of election day in the most effective manner, and be sure that each department is provided for. Finally, let individual citizens act as early as possible. This will help mightily, by enabling the workers to know who have to be hunted up. Moreover, it will give life to the void.

Mass-Meeting for W. F. Havemeyer.

The arrangements for a down-town meeting to ratify the nomination of Wm. F. Havemeyer for Mayor, are now completed. The meeting will be held today at noon, at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets. The speakers will be Wm. M. Evarts and ex-Gov. Salomon, and others. The speakers will address the assemblage from the high stone steps of the Sub-Treasury.

The feeling yesterday among the solid men down-town, was decidedly in favor of the meeting, and it is expected that an immense audience will be present.

The Hours of Voting.

Don't forget that the new Election law prescribes that the polls shall be opened at 6 o'clock in the morning, and closed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. You will eat your breakfast with an improved appetite if you make voting the first duty of the day.

The Seventy's Ticket for Aldermen.

The Committee of Seventy have completed their selections for Aldermen from the nominees of the various parties, and have put forward the following ticket, which comprises eight Democrats and seven Republicans:

Oswald Ottendorfer,
Samuel B. H. Vance,	Peter Kehr,
George Koch,	O. P. C. Billings,
Peter Gilsey,	John J. Morris,
S. V. R. Cooper,	David M. Koehler,
Fredk. Germann,	John Falconer,
Townsend Cox,	Peter B. Olney,
Henry Clausen,	George Barkhardt.

It is not generally known that, by a law passed last Winter, the name of the candidate for Assistant Alderman in each district is to be placed on the same ballot with the Aldermen, who run on a general ticket throughout the City.

"Independent Journalism."

Fenton's organ-grinder can find nothing better to do with our frank criticism of Husted, Vedder and Woerth than to use it to bolster up the Tammany candidates. Tammany is running some of the most notorious scoundrels in the country for office, and the Tribune does not open its line to rebuke them. It supports men like Sunset Cox and lets the lewd fellows of the bear sort go by default. This is "independence." Meantime, we repeat that the men we have mentioned, especially Husted, ought not to be elected. But the Tribune can only find three of our nominees to denounce, and has to go to our columns for material then. Why not reprint our opinion of the Tammany Assemblymen?

Why the Democrats Support Greeley.

"If Grant is re-elected, no Democrat will have a place in his Cabinet, or any influence in his Administration; whereas if Mr. Greeley is the next President, a majority of his advisers will consist of Democratic statesmen."—New-York World, Oct. 30.

North Carolina Democracy.

To discover just how much North Carolina Democracy respects the Union, read the statement of Judge Thomas Settle as to what he saw at a fair in Goldsboro. He saw the United States flag lying in the dust, and when it was proposed to raise it, a Democratic State Senator remarked, "Let it lie; that's the place for it."

A Correction.

Hon. James A. Doering is the nominee of the Republicans of the Nineteenth Assembly District for the Assembly, and not Thomas P. O'Callaghan, whose name appeared in our list of local nominations.

Dunn vs. Brooks.

We trust that the merchants and business men, as well as all honest men, of the Sixth Congressional District will not fail to make themselves felt in the contest between Dr. Adolphe G. Dunn and James Brooks for a seat in the next Congress. Dr. Dunn is a man whose abilities will do honor to the position, and whose pleasure it will be to serve his constituents rather than himself. He will not steal from the public treasury, nor will he, like his opponent, defend stealing in others. A man who, like James Brooks, has represented Tammany Hall in Congress ten consecutive years, who was the pet spokesman of the Ring thieves and their most servile champion after their infamy had been proven to the whole world, whose course during the war was so disloyal as he dared to make it, and whose Congressional career is chiefly distinguished by the accumulation of a large fortune for himself, is not the man to represent the City of New-York any longer. He has already represented it too long. We trust the good people of the Sixth Congressional District, where he has recently transferred his carpet-bag, will give him leave to stay at home

A Pretty Pair.

Smith M. Weed is a candidate for Assembly in Clinton County; James Irving is a candidate for the same position in this City. Should they both be elected, what loving embraces and mutual congratulations will be witnessed as they make their grand entrance into the Assembly Chamber at Albany.

A Serious Mistake.

An examination of the registry shows that in one respect the inspectors have, in many districts, mistaken the law. They have acted on the idea that a person may vote for President and Governor who has not lived a year in the State and four months in the County. This is an error. No person can vote for any officer who has not lived four month in the County and a year in the State. Persons who have so resided, may, however, in consequence of recent changes of residence have a right to vote for some local officers and not for others. Thus, some may vote the Presidential and general and Aldermanic tickets, because those run through the entire City, and not be able to vote for Assemblyman. In such cases, however, the Assistant Aldermen must be struck from the Aldermanic ticket. No person who has moved within thirty days from one Assembly District into another can vote for Assemblyman or Assistant Alderman. No person who has moved from one Congressional district into another within thirty days can vote for any Congressman, except the Congressman at large, and his name is borne on the general ticket.

It may be as well to quote the clause of the Constitution bearing upon this question. It is as follows: "Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ten days and an inhabitant of this State one year next preceding an election, and for the last four ten the a resident of the county where he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district where he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere. [illegible] But such citizen shall have been for thirty days next preceding the election a resident of the district from which the officer is to be chosen for whom he offers to vote."

Grant for Reformers.

The Tribune sought to give comfort to its readers a few days ago by assuming that the Washington Commercial had admitted that "the strong speaker who counts on Delaware for Grant simply makes a fool of himself." We know this to be contrary to the whole tenor of the Commercial during the past few weeks, and now that steady and confident supporter of Grant speaks for itself, saying in its issue of Wednesday: "From all parts of our State the accounts are very encouraging for a decisive Republican success, next Tuesday. Delaware will vote for Grant and Wilson, but she ought to do even better, by electing Indiana, and a Republican Legislature.

Another Tribune Half-Truth.

The Tribune publishes, apparently to its great satisfaction, a list of the Greeley electors in North Carolina, to show that Mr. S. Trivett, of Asia, is not among them. The "further information" it seeks can be given by the statement that Mr. Trivett is one of the assistant electors, the Greeleyites of the Old North State having apparently expected some of their nominees to refuse to stand, and made provision for all vacancies by nominating a full set of alternates. In his letter to which the telegram to the Times referred, Mr. Trivett says that he "most positively declines to accept the position"; that his name was used without his knowledge or consent; and, finally that, in his view, to aid the Greeleyites in opposition to the National Republican Party "would be acting as unwisely as the man who took the frozen adder into his bosom and warmed it to life, and in return received the thrust of its deadly sting."

The Vote of New-York State.

The gross and wholesale frauds upon the ballot-box in New-York and Brooklyn in 1868, when Gen. Grant was cheated out of the electoral vote of the State by 10,000, and Mr. Greenwold for the Governorship by 31,000, are clearly established by the registration of 1872, completed on Saturday last. Allowing for only ten per cent. increase of legal voters in New-York City in the four intervening years, and twenty per cent. increase in four years in Brooklyn—or at the rate of two and a half per cent. a year of resident legal voters to the population of this City, and five per cent. a year in Brooklyn, the registration this year, if the registration or vote were not fraudulent, would be in New-York, 185,607; and in Brooklyn, 83,166. The actual registration is, in New-York, 148,610; in Brooklyn, 75,517.

The vote in 1868 was as follows:

	New-York.	Brooklyn.
Seymour	108,338	39,340
Grant	47,713	37,711
Total	156,051	77,051
*Registration in 1868	182,372	69,937

*Frauds beyond question.

Another Greeley Man Bolted.

The following letter from Daniel D. Conover shows the increasing weakness of poor Mr. Greeley's cause:

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, Oct. 29, 1872.

Hon. Thomas E. Stanley, Chairman Liberal Republican Central Committee:

I beg leave, through you, to tender my resignation as a member of the Committee over which you preside.

I am, and have been, a Republican from the formation of that party.

In supporting Mr. Greeley I did not mean to leave that party, but supposed that we were to keep up our separate organization. I find, however, that quite a number of those with whom I have heretofore acted, seem determined to drift us into Tammany Hall, or, at least, make us the instruments of fraud and unfairness of which to that organization. As a Republican I decline to be so transferred or used.

In withdrawing from your Committee I do so for the purpose of joining with those who, I am forced to conclude, constitute the only Republican Party, namely, those who support the nominees of the Philadelphia Convention, Grant and Wilson.

With the best wishes to you and the members of the Committee, I remain, yours truly,

D. D. CONOVER,

Representative Eleventh Assembly District.

Gen. Dix and Our Common Schools.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

There is no disguising the fact that the people fear the election of Mr. Kernan as Governor would be a menace to our common-school system. That there is an adroit and wary force opposed to this system, every man knows. That it has insidiously secured large sums from the State, that it aims at a division of the school-fund, and that it exercises all the influence and power of its authority in this direction, every man understands. Hence the natural, unavoidable apprehension concerning Mr. Kernan.

The election of Gen. Dix, on the other hand will be a declaration that the people do not mean to have their school system undermined. He is peculiarly the friend of the common schools. He was in former years Secretary of State, and ex officio Superintendent of Common Schools, serving in that position for six years. His name was then associated with the work, it accomplished in behalf of the schools. Hon. Samuel S. Randall, in his History of the Common School System of the State of New-York, reviews Gen. DIX's career as Superintendent, and thus concludes:

"In passing from the administration of Gen. Dix to that of his successor, it is scarcely necessary to observe that the exertions of the former, during the six years in which the interests of the common schools were committed to his charge, in the elevation and expansion of the system of popular education, were unsurpassed by any of his predecessors. The impress of his clear, discriminating, and cultivated mind was stamped upon every feature of that system; and the order, arrangement, and harmony which prevailed in all its parts, were due not less to the ceaseless vigilance of his supervision than to the symmetry and beauty of his system itself. In 1857, under the authority of the Legislature, he collected together and published a volume of the decisions of his predecessor and himself, embracing a full exposition of nearly every provision of the School act—establishing upon a permanent basis the principle of future interpretation, and exerting a highly beneficial influence upon the councils and proceedings of the officers and inhabitants of the several districts, in repressing litigation, and in defining the powers, privileges and responsibilities of those called to the performance of any duty in relation to the common school. The system of district school libraries was also organized and put into successful operation under his immediate supervision; and to his clear and convincing exposition of the principles upon which that useful and beneficent institution was based, the end it was designed to subserve, and the objects it was capable of accomplishing, a large share of the success which has attended the establishment is unquestionably due."

With Kernan, on the one side, and Gen. DIX, who did so much for the schools, on the other, must not every wise friend of our school system sustain DIX?

NEW-YORK STATE.

The German Element of Rochester Thoroughly Republican.

Character of the Campaign in the Western Tier of Counties—Fenton's Own Townsmen Turning Against Him.

From Our Special Correspondent.

BUFFALO, Wednesday, Oct. 30, 1872.

Unless all Republicans are knaves or idiots, no more complete political victory ever crowned the efforts of any party than will reward them on Tuesday next in the Empire State. Since I wrote from Utica I have gone westward through the State, meeting many working Republicans who are well informed as to the condition of affairs in the counties of Cayuga, Ontario, Yates, Livingston, Genesee, Wyoming, Monroe, Orleans, Niagara, Erie and Chautauqua. Almost without exception these zealous workers against the coalition were disposed to regard the Times' estimate as a slander upon Republican capacity in these counties. Excepting Genesee and Chautauqua, I was informed time and again that these counties would do far more than was expected of them, and I was everywhere assured that friends as well as foes were to be astonished by the magnitude of the majorities which would be rolled up on Tuesday for Gen. Grant and all Republican nominees. This feeling of confidence is general throughout the State so far as I have been able to observe and it is reinforced everywhere by an energy in the good cause which seems to fully justify it.

SIGNS AT UTICA.

At the Utica meeting Monday night, of which brief mention was made by telegraph, Secretary Boutwell concluded his great argument by "smoking out" Senator Conkling, who was hiding out of view of the audience in one of the boxes, and whose presence in the building long thus made known, was forced to take the platform by repeated calls. He spoke for nearly an hour with his accustomed force, but devoted himself mainly to a review of the political condition of the State. He said he had just returned from New-York, where he had spent many hours in going over the detailed statements of the condition of affairs in the several counties received by the State Committee, and he was fully convinced that not only would Gen. Grant sweep the State, but Gen. Dix and the whole ticket would be elected by majorities that not long ago would have seemed impossible. We were not to be swindled this year in the lower portion of the State, and as it was absolutely certain that the Democracy could not come above the Highlands with anything like 40,000 majority, they were doomed to a crushing defeat. Steuben County, he said, was going to do better than ever before, and the same was true of nearly every Republican stronghold in Northern, Central and Western New-York, but he urged his hearers not to take anything for granted, but to use every endeavor to augment the victory until the polls close on Tuesday. Oneida County, he said, would in any event give 3,200 majority for Grant, but it could give 3,500, and would if they displayed the same vigor to the end that they have thus far evinced. His statements of his belief and his appeals for continued energy were greeted with great applause, showing that the right spirit is abroad in Oneida, and that almost anything can be expected of it. At one time there were many Republicans in the county disposed to wander off, but as soon as it became apparent that Greeleyism was nothing better than an attempt of the Democracy to sneak into power burglar fashion, they commenced returning, and nearly all of them have got back into their old places. More are on the point of coming back, and by election day the Liberal Republican Party in that locality, as nearly everywhere else, will be composed almost exclusively of a few screeches, whose eminent fitness to hold office has not been seen with the same distinctness by their party associates as by themselves.

IN AND ABOUT ROCHESTER.

What is observable at Utica can be seen everywhere else. Stopping at Rochester, yesterday, I came upon some facts of great significance, but which the Greeleyites can hardly consider encouraging. To those who have been victims of the delusion that Carl Schurz carries the German vote in his pocket, it is a matter of extreme surprise to discover that the Germans of Rochester, Democrats as well as Republicans, are, almost without exception, for Grant and Dix. This fact has been ascertained by a careful canvass which has been made of the city under the direction of the County Committee, of which Mr. H. H. Woodward is Chairman, and which shows a Republican majority of five hundred. It is to the credit of Rochester that there is no place in the State of its size which can produce so few Liberals. Saturday night this exceedingly select party undertook to hold an Assembly Convention, and the dimensions of the body leaked out through the proceedings of the Democratic Convention, held simultaneously in another hall. In this latter body a motion was made to appoint a Committee of Conference with the Liberals, to consist of one member from each ward, but it was objected that the Liberals could not appoint a committee of equal size, as their Convention had not so many members, and the Convention, which could not muster fourteen names, was not conferred with. Yet is contained nearly all of the native Liberals to be found in the entire City of Rochester, and the two parties cannot be blamed for ignoring this infinitesimal element in all estimates of the chances. In Rochester and Monroe County it is a straight fight between the Republican and Democratic Parties, with the latter disorganized by repugnance to "boiled crow," and the former nerved to extraordinary exertions by the reported dangerous strength of the coalition in other localities. Monroe County, of which Rochester is the capital, promises to do better than ever before, and her sturdy Republicans insist on giving 1,500 majority for both Grant and Dix, while in the Twenty-ninth Congressional District, composed of Monroe and Orleans, they will have 3,500, and Hon. Freeman Clarke, the able and popular Republican candidate for Congress, will lag hardly a vote behind. The only matter in doubt in Monroe is the member of Assembly for Rochester. The city comprises the Second Assembly District of the county, and while there is an undoubted Republican majority in its limits, Hon. George D. Lord, Democrat, was elected last year, and, being now a candidate for re-election, fears are entertained that he may again succeed in detesting the Republican nominee. There is much interest centered in this contest, as it is the only one of the county of which there is the slightest doubt, and such efforts will, in consequence, be made by both parties that the election of the Republican candidate is almost assured. This result would make a gain upon the estimate of the Assembly published in the Times, as there was a chance of the election of Lord, and the Second District was conceded to the Democrats.

BUFFALO AND ERIE COUNTY.

If it is a comfort to most the Republicanism of Rochester, it is an exceeding joy to come in contact with that of Buffalo and Erie County. Political excitement is as fever heat everywhere in city and county, work has been and is vigorously pushed everywhere, hundreds of meetings have been held, argument has been exhausted, the city has been carefully polled, active and trustworthy challenging and rallying committees have been or will be appointed in every election district, of which there are seventy-two in city and county; and as the upshot of it all, I have been unable to find a single Republican who does not claim at least 2,500 majority for Grant in the county, and I have met many who claim three thousand, while some beg to be set down as idiots, unable to read the signs of the times. If Erie does not give 3,500, or even 3,000. This last figure appears extravagant, but all the others are plainly within the range of possibilities. All in Rochester, the Germans, almost to a man, have repudiated Schurz and his assumptions, and have declared in favor of Grant. This is one reason of the accessions to the Republican strength; but one equally important is the fact that hundreds of Democrats will vote for Grant, while other hundreds will remain away from the polls. As one of many proofs that such is the case, it may be mentioned that in a block containing sixty voters, of which a careful canvass was made, six Democrats were found who made no secret of their intention to vote for Gen. Grant, and seven others, were equally certain that they should not vote at all. Many Democrats of local prominence are known to have spoken with the same plainness to the same effect, and it is well known that the Evening Post, formerly a Democratic paper, has come out squarely, under the management of Mr. Geo. J. Bryan, for the whole Republican ticket. With all these facts on one side, very few Liberals can be arrayed against them. No one of any prominence has gone over except William Dorsheimer, and he, although a man of ability, never had the gift of political management, and consequently has no following. He is reported to be fully aware of the situation generally, for he is said to have remarked that as for himself he belonged naturally to the Democratic Party, and the result of the coalition would make no great difference to him, but he did not know what would become of the other Liberals. In Buffalo there are very few of them of any grade to encounter any fate whatever, and consequently the disgust among the Democrats awakened by the sale to Greeley has brought about a political revolution in Erie County which is absolutely astounding in its dimensions. The "tidal wave" can be seen here at its highest, and it is sweeping the hapless Greeleyites to swift and certain destruction. Two years ago Hon. Wm. Williams, Democrat, carried the Thirty-first Congressional District, which is composed of Erie County, and a decided majority, on his defeat on Tuesday by Hon. Lyman K. Bass, the Republican candidate, by at least fifteen hundred majority is inevitable. A similar fate is in store for nearly all the candidates of the demoralized Democracy. Some of the Republicans claim all of the Assembly members, but it is positively certain that George Baits will be elected in the Second District, Franklin A. Alberger in the Third, and John Nice in the Fourth, while John O'Brien in the First, and Robert B. Foster in the Fifth, have equal chances with their Democratic competitors.

The Greeleyites plainly see the overwhelming defeat which is before them in Erie County, and are already attempting to explain it by the well-worn cries of fraud and undue influence. Last Spring the revolt against the then hatching quackery of Chappaqua was manifested by the City of Buffalo at the municipal election in a manner to astonish the unprejudiced, and it has now been discovered that the result was due to "gigantic frauds," which news has just reached the astonished city via the New-York Tribune. This being the case with a charter election occurring months ago, of course it is absolutely certain that he will not succeed in any of his immediate objects in the two counties named. Both will elect Republican Assemblymen, and the two will roll up a majority for Grant and Dix, which will be conclusive proof that, fortunately for the State and nation, the days of Fentonism are ended. NEW-JERSEY.

The Last Week of the Canvass—A Republican Victory Certain.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEWARK, Oct. 31.—The Republicans of this State are closing out their canvass with great activity and enthusiasm. To-night some sixty meetings have been held in various parts of the State, addressed by such men as Secretary Robeson, Gen. Van Buren, Hon. S. B. Dutcher and others. At Mt. Holly an afternoon mass-meeting was addressed by Gen. E. M. Lee, R. W. Throckmorton and other eminent speakers. At Newton to-night John V. Foster addressed a large and enthusiastic audience, replying to Gen. Kilpatrick, who spoke there last week. To-morrow night meetings will be held in nearly every important town of the State, and processions will take place in all the principal centres.

From the best information that can be obtained, this State will give 5,000 majority for the Republican ticket. The majority may, possibly, reach 6,000. The Republicans will elect four Congressmen certainly, and possibly six. They will, according to present estimates, carry both branches of the Legislature by decisive majorities, and elect their local tickets in fifteen out of the twenty-one counties.

Grant and Wilson Mass-Meeting at Mount Holly—Speeches, Torch-lights, and Illumination.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Oct. 31.—The friends of Grant and Wilson held an enthusiastic mass-meeting here this afternoon. The Court-house was packed to overflowing. Effective speeches were made by E. W. Throckmorton, of Jersey City; Gen. E. M. Lee, of Kansas, and Hon. S. B. Dutcher, of New-York. This evening the town is alive with lights and enthusiasm. A grand procession marched through the town, numbering all the parade companies of the county and visiting companies from Philadelphia, Camden, Trenton, and other places, with several thousand torches in line. The houses were brilliantly illuminated all along the route of parade, attesting the enthusiasm of the people for Grant, Wilson, and the whole ticket. Burlington County will give a good account of herself in the coming struggle.

Election of Officers by the Vermont Legislature.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 31.—The Vermont Legislature made the following elections of State officers today: Secretary of State—George Nichols, of Northfield; Auditor—W. G. Ferrin, of Montpelier; Quarter-master General—W. W. Lynde, of Marlboro; Railroad Commissioner [illegible]; Adjutant and Inspector General—James S. Peck, of Montpelier; Judge Advocate-General—S. M. Southard, of Vergennes; Railroad Commissioner—M. R. Bailey, of St. Albans; Directors of State Prison—G. W. Hartshorn, of Lunenburgh, and W. R. Speed, of Newbury.

SPEAKER BLAINE AT HUDSON.

An Enthusiastic Grant and Wilson Republican Meeting—The Administration Ably Defended.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HUDSON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—This city was the scene, this evening, of one of the most magnificent demonstrations of the campaign. The occasion that elicited so much enthusiasm was the announcement that Hon. James G. Blaine, of Maine, Speaker of the House of Representatives, would be present and address our citizens. An impromptu torch-light procession was formed to escort the Speaker to the hall. The line of march was brilliantly illuminated by blazing bonfires. Flags were everywhere displayed, and the houses of our citizens handsomely decorated. Delegations were present from the adjacent counties, and the adjoining river towns sent uniformed clubs to represent them. An immense audience early assembled in the City Hall, that room being densely packed with human beings. Hundreds were unable to obtain admittance. The meeting organized by calling to the chair Hon. Peter S. Wynkoop, of this city, who introduced the orator of the evening.

Speaker Blaine met with an enthusiastic reception, the audience rising and cheering enthusiastically. The address was a most powerful and convincing argument, of two hours' duration, during which the audience listened with the greatest attention, frequently greeting the speaker with rounds of applause. Grant's Administration and the Republican Party were ably vindicated, and a splendid tribute paid to our popular candidate for Congress, Gen. John H. Ketcham, whom we shall return to Congress for the fifth time. The meeting was a magnificent success, and gratifying to every Republican heart. Columbia County has maintained a splendid canvass throughout this contest, and may be relied upon to do her whole duty.

The River Rhone Overflowing the Surrounding Country.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The waters of the River Rhone are rising. The dikes above the town of Arles are broken in many places, and the extensive plains of the Camargue are inundated.

Gen. Ducrot has issued a proclamation to the troops under his command, exhorting them to remember that never were their duties more imperious and sacred. An army, disciplined, educated, and powerful in numbers, is needed to check the progress of internal enemies, while protecting the country from foreign foes. The General says the time may come when the Germans will regret rending hearts and homes, and tearing from France her dearest children.

LONDON, Nov. 1—6 A. M.—Mr. W. E. Baxter, member of Parliament for Montrose, addressed his constituents last night. He said the results of the Geneva Arbitration was the grandest triumph of modern civilization. The award was just, and the decision calculated to make nations careful, while it was eminently serviceable for the protection of English shipping and commerce in the time of war. He praised Mr. Disraeli for his forbearance and discretion during the progress of the negotiations.

Terrible Suffering and Desolation Caused by the Overflow of the River Po.

ROME, Oct. 31.—Dispatches from Turin report no abatement of the floods caused by the overflow of the River Po. Over 4,000 men are at work day and night, erecting barriers to arrest further progress of the water. The damages to property and crops in the Provinces of Mantua and Ferrara are beyond calculation. In Ferrara alone 40,000 persons are homeless. Assistance is being rapidly forwarded from all points to the suffering people.

TURIN, Oct. 31.—The River Po continues to rise, and the inundation is spreading. Families are flying, and those who cannot escape are starving on the house-tops and in the trees, where they have taken refuge.

The streams are filled with the carcasses of cattle and the wrecks of houses and barns.

The town of Reggio, fourteen miles from Modena, has almost entirely disappeared beneath the flood.

One of Tammany's Dodges.

The Republicans in the Twelfth Assembly District are just most much amused by a political movement just now in operation by W. W. Cook, who is slated for Justice Koch. Cook is a candidate for Assembly on the Tammany ticket in that district, and enjoys the support and cooperation of his employer in the campaign. He has taken advantage of an obsolete ordinance on sidewalk obstructions, and is having business men who favor the Republican ticket arrested and brought to Court, where they are heavily fined by Justice Koch. The Republican business men, some of whom have been fined, say that if they wish to escape the fine and annoyance, all they have to do is to pledge their votes to Cook, instead of Ehrhn, his opponent. One of the Republican Chairmen, Keller, has been discharged from the Court for his preference for Ehrhn, and Justice Koch informed him that he would drive him into the Alms-house if he continued to "go back" on Tammany. The Republican citizens of the district are much harassed just now by this movement, therefore the Republican Committee intend to take the matter in hand.

PRISON BREAKING.

Escape of Two Convicts from the Rhode Island State Prison—Terrible Struggles With Two of the Officers.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 31.—The State Prison in Providence, at an early hour this morning, was the scene of a desperate assault, and the subsequent escaping of two prisoners. As the night-watchman, Benjamin C. Allen, was making his rounds, Elisha E. Peck, one of the convicts, came up behind him and dealt him a blow with a piece of gas-pipe, afterward beating him till he was insensible. He then took a suspender and a piece of rope, tied the watchman's hands behind him, and took from his pocket his revolver, watch, pocket-book, keys, &c. He then threw his victim down the cellar and there left him for dead. The wretch now had the field to himself, and amused himself in unlocking cells and trying to induce the prisoners to escape, but only succeeded in enticing one, Charles Williams, who, with freedom in sight, commenced with his companion in operating upon the locks of the doors adjoining the yard. In this they were foiled; they could get no further, and here they remained for three hours. As time wore on and being acquainted with prison rules, and knowing that the watchman always rang a bell in the hall communicating with the steward's room at 4 o'clock to awaken the steward, in order that he might see that the breakfast was being prepared in season, they followed out the custom. M. H. Shutteck, the steward, upon hearing the usual signal, got up and started to go through the office into the cell-room and into the cooking-room. This room is separated from the office by two doors, with a lookout in the centre, that the officer might see into the cell-room that everything was all right. He gave a lookout to the last-mentioned door, and, as he naturally, everything was as it should be. He then unbolted the door, glanced through the grated door, and unbolted and opened it. As soon as he stepped outside, he was seized by Peck, who was secreted behind the door. A terrible struggle now ensued; but the watchman, being on the alert, dealt the prisoner a blow which felled him to the floor, and, following up his advantage, attempted to secure him, at the same time shouting "murder," "help," &c. Williams, however, seeing his "pal" and himself also in serious danger, came to Peck's assistance, and struck the steward a heavy blow on the forehead with the butt of a revolver, completely stunning him. The two prisoners then attempted to make good their escape, but before they had made any progress, the steward, having somewhat recovered from the blow, got hold of them again, and used every exertion to detain them until assistance could be procured. But the wretches were fleeting for liberty, and they had but little difficulty in getting clear from him, and accordingly they dealt him another blow, which knocked him senseless. They then sprang for the door, and with such force as to break the glass, and escaped. Warden Viall and Deputy Warden Fitzpatrick heard the commotion in the yard and hastened to the office, giving themselves hardly time to dress; but the prisoners had made good their escape, having some three minutes

THE HORSE DISTEMPER.

A Marked Improvement Generally Observed.

Increase of Cars and Stages on the Various City Lines.

Important Measures Adopted by the Board of Health.

Examinations of Dead Horses Being Made by Surgeon-General Kenworthy's Mortality Table.

The mortality among the horses affected by the epidemic shows no diminution from previous returns, yet the improvement which manifested itself in the less serious cases continues, and the City begins to resume somewhat of its former wonted activity. The street-cars, as a general thing, have increased their running forces, and yesterday a larger number of stages than has been seen for a week past were on the road. In the business streets the change was equally observable, and everywhere there appeared to be an increased degree of activity. On Broadway the crush of a great thoroughfare is rapidly returning. The disease appears to have thoroughly spent itself, and is undoubtedly on the road to disappearance. Nevertheless it must be several weeks yet before the City is entirely its busy self again—before business returns to its former grooves.

A considerable number of cases must also be expected to result fatally, and, as in everything else, the improvement cannot be unexceptionably general.

Numbers of oxen are being brought into service in place of the affected horses, and these novel teams are now no uncommon sight along Greenwich, Church, and West streets and West Broadway. Advices have been received to arrive today, orders for nearly 100 yoke having been sent to agents in Long Island, New-Jersey and Westchester.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE.

The prospects of a general return to the former steady routine of trade caused a revival yesterday of good spirits among the mercantile community, as merchants did not have the same fears which had affected them earlier in the week, lest heavy losses would be experienced in consequence of the non-delivery of goods. In some wholesale houses orders from the country had been countermanded even after the goods had been packed; but it was believed that this had arisen from the probable detention that might take place between the shipper and the consignee, and it was expected that the goods would again be ordered by the customers as soon as the lines of transit might be considered unimpeded. So general has been the trouble that wholesale merchants have received letters showing that if even they succeeded in forwarding their goods either rail or steam-boat, there was a certainty that the consignee would be able to get the packages from the depots to their places of business, and on this account only they desired their orders countermanded. This the merchants felt convinced would soon right itself as the effects of the epidemic disappeared.

ALONG THE PIERS.

Along the piers of South and West streets, yesterday, the appearance was very encouraging. Nearly all of the extensive blockades of freight which had choked up the piers during the past few days had been cleared away, or were so rapidly disappearing as to give a great hope that Sunday would find but little of it remaining which could be injured by exposure. The freight of a very large number of which was characteristic of this portion of the City seemed to have been thoroughly resumed yesterday, and railroad piers were as busy receiving freight for the West and South as they had been in clearing off that which had arrived by steam-boat bound for the City. The clerks at the Erie pier, foot of Chambers-street, were busily engaged, and that portion of the piers which were set apart for outward-bound freight was apparently as active as that upon which recently-arrived cargoes are placed to be carried away. The constant passing to and fro of teams at all the piers gave them a very lively appearance, and the drivers almost unanimously agreed that their horses are getting better. It is however, evident that many of the animals are very weak; for when the wheels of a heavily-laden cart or truck get into a rut or mud-hole (of which there are far too many in the lower part of the City) the horses are not strong enough to draw the cart out, and manual labor has to be used instead of the brute power.

The grocers, tobacco merchants, feed-dealers and others requiring the hauling of heavy goods said, yesterday, that they are getting all their trucking done at a very slight advance from the usual rates. Some of the large houses that have horses of their own, prefer to hire for the present until their animals are considered well; others are using their live stock moderately, under the impression that slight activity is more beneficial than idleness. In those cases where special cartmen do the trucking for certain houses, the merchants have had to pay but little more than usual, the cartmen knowing that should they lose a horse in the service of their employers, the latter would only them to replace the loss.

THE OX-TEAMS.

The oxen have, to a great extent, proved a failure in the transit of goods in a city like New-York. Not only are they too slow in every way, their unshod feet not being fitted for the slippery pavements, but they are incapable of drawing half the load which

THE NEW-YORK TIMES,
New-York City.

We have repeatedly harped the Express with having suppressed the proofs of the Tammany Ring frauds, which we published over a year ago. Once or twice it has summoned up what we suppose it calls the "courage" to deny this statement. It did so last night in its usual coarse fashion, saying that its "files give the lie" to our assertion. This is a matter easily susceptible of proof. Let the Express give the date of the paper in which it published the proofs above alluded to. We assert again that it has deliberately and dishonestly suppressed those proofs. Instead of wrangling about the matter, let it cite the paper which will refute our charges.

With Gen. DIX as Governor of the State, and Mr. HAVEMEYER as Mayor of the City, the public interests will be in safe hands. Can any prudent citizen hesitate about voting for these gentlemen? There is still talk about "bargaining" in reference to Mr. HAVEMEYER. We hope our readers will disregard all such gossip, and make up their minds to do their duty by voting for Mr. HAVEMEYER as Mayor, and for the State Reform ticket as announced every day in our columns. Our candidates are announced every day at the head of this page. We do not see what more we can do to make known our own preferences on the subject. We should not put these names up if we did not earnestly desire to have the people support them. Vote for DIX and HAVEMEYER next Tuesday—never mind what people say about "bargains." Every voter has it in his power to defeat bargains, real or imaginary, and if our advice is followed, our State ticket and our City and County ticket will be elected just as they stand.

Mr. GREELEY's paper says that Mr. D. C. LITTLEJOHN is "vindicated." We do not see how. The charges against him remain unanswered. He has been the obsequious agent of Tammany, and has not labored without reward. He has been false to his friends and false to his party. These things have been proved. It is the duty of the Republicans of Oswego County to send an honest Republican to the Assembly, and not a Tammany tool. They can do this by electing Mr. DANIEL G. FONDA, and remitting LITTLEJOHN to the quiet enjoyment of his Tammany plunder.

The World is always "wise and philosophical," as some of its contemporaries take malicious pleasure in telling it, and yesterday it proved its claim to this praise by making a brace of statements which are at least worth attention. In one article it says: "If every Democrat in the Union supports Mr. GREELEY at the polls, he will be elected." Wonderful discovery; worthy of a wise and philosophic mind. It might further be said that if "every citizen in the Union supports Mr. GREELEY, he will be elected"—and so he would. If pigs had wings they would probably fly. The drawback to the World's hypothesis is that the reasons it gave some weeks ago why Democrats should not support GREELEY, still weigh powerfully with the bulk of the party, who cannot throw a double backsomersault with quite as much ease as the World. In another article it says that "Mr. TILDEN's services in City affairs make him a sufficient indorser of the character of any alliance in Municipal politics he chooses." Now, when Mr. TILDEN "indorsed" ANDREW H. GREEN as Controller, what did the World say of him? That he was a "railway speculator," and a fellow-conspirator with TWEED, HALL, SWEENY, and CONNOLLY. How is it that the World has changed its opinion of Mr. TILDEN? Why did it abuse him as an associate of thieves because he "indorsed" ANDREW H. GREEN, an honest man, for an important office? Let us hear a word of explanation on this point.

We do not see room for doubt as to which way the Reform vote of this City should be cast for Mayor. Mr. HAVEMEYER has the confidence of every citizen who knows either his private or public life. He will enter on his office backed by that body of earnest men which, independently of party, joined in the great movement a year ago. If he were not (as he is) heart and soul a Reformer himself, he could not betray so powerful a constituency; and being in full sympathy with it, he must make an incalculably better Mayor for its support. There is an excellent chance to elect him, and if the honest people of this City cannot perform so plain a duty under all existing circumstances, we can only say they will deserve the kind of Government his defeat would fasten on us.

It is to be hoped that the members of the Bar of the State, without regard to party, will exert themselves to secure the approval, at the approaching election, of the amendment to the Constitution relating to the Commission of Appeals. It simply extends the term of that body, and provides for expediting justice, by clearing the accumulated cases from the Court of Appeal.

The Republican candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, Mr. ETHAN FLAGG, is a man whom all parties ought to take pleasure in supporting. He is thoroughly acquainted with the district, is a man of wealth and of unblemished reputation, and has shown in his own neighborhood the most patient and intelligent devotion to public affairs. He would make an eminently useful member.

We hope that our friends in this City will not neglect the splendid opportunity they now have to rid the City of the disgrace of being represented in Congress by Tammany tools. Cast a solid vote for TREMAIN as against "Sunset" COX, who has always been obedient to Tammany. Unite for such men as Dr. DUNN against the former Know-Nothing and treacherous JAMES BROOKS; for Mr. LAWSON, as against the "trimmer" SHAW; for Mr. MELLINS, as against HARDY, (Tammany Clerk of Common Council,) or CONNOLLY, (Tammany Judge,) and for Mr. DARLING, as against that worst of political adventurers, FERNANDO WOOD. The choice cannot be difficult. Let us have a solid vote of the honest people for the best candidates.

That people have made up their minds that Gen. GRANT is the proper man to vote for next Tuesday, and not HORACE GREELEY, is generally agreed. It is in the air. But it is of no use for them to make up their minds unless they also take the trouble to vote. The only hope of the Democrats is in the over confidence and lassitude of the Republicans. Let our friends remember this. Let us bring out our fullest strength next Tuesday, in every part of the Union. Our work has been done well thus far, but little will it profit us if we do not turn out in a solid mass next Tuesday.

It is of the utmost importance that the Committee of Seventy should retain public confidence in regard to the fair and disinterested spirit which actuates its selection of candidates for local and legislative positions. In the Sixteenth and Twentieth Assembly Districts, certain of its members appear to have rejected the best candidates and indorsed the worst. The Committee owes it alike to the public and to the cause of Reform, which it represents, to give its reasons for preferring the Tammany nominee in the Twentieth District, JOHN D. COUGHLAN, to the Republican candidate, WM. S. OPDYKE, and for indorsing PETER WOODS in the Sixteenth District, in preference to either WM. LABERGE or NICHOLAS HAUGHTON. If the Committee has any reasons to justify its choice in these districts, the sooner it makes them public the better, as its judgment is directly contrary to that of the vast majority of Reformers.

The Two Candidates.

The time for argument is nearly passed; but if there are any who yet hesitate as to their duty and interest on Tuesday, let them ask themselves the following questions, and give them a candid answer:

1. Would not the election of Mr. GREELEY make the future of business uncertain? Would it be possible to tell what he would do with the Treasury Department, or what influence his course would have on the credit of the country?

2. Would not Mr. GREELEY's election tend to make every extreme secessionist feel that a party favorable to his views of Government, and sympathizing with his passions and prejudices, was in power?

3. Would not Mr. GREELEY's election give good ground to those affected by the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments—both to those restrained and to those protected thereby—to think that those amendments would not be enforced firmly or thoroughly? And would not such a feeling tend to a disastrous state of affairs in the Southern States?

4. Would not the election of Mr. GREELEY, with his known peculiarities of temperament, and his avowed views with reference to several questions in our foreign affairs, involve considerable danger of foreign complications plunged into without deliberation, and managed without dignity or wisdom?

5. Would not the election of Mr. GREELEY be likely to be fatal to the progress of real civil service reform, on account of the impossibility of applying its principles to the redistribution of a vast number of offices, and also on account of the notorious hostility of the leaders of the Democratic Party to any such reform?

6. Finally, would not Mr. GREELEY's election be substantially the installation of the Democratic Party, with nearly all the objections unremoved which have kept the people from trusting that party for the past twelve years?

On the other hand: 1. Would not the election of Gen. GRANT give all reasonable assurance of a prosperous business future—and certainly of the steady maintenance of the line of conduct by the Treasury, now so well known and approved by the country? Would it not be certain that nothing would be done to impair the credit of the Government, or to give any sudden shock to the business interests of the country?

2. Would not Gen. GRANT's election make every earnest, honest Union man feel that the Government was in the hands of a party heartily in sympathy with his own sentiments, and bound to see, under all circumstances, that the integrity of the country should never be even questioned?

3. Would not the election of President GRANT insure the temperate but impartial enforcement of the recent amendments to the National Constitution, and put an end to all fear or hope that they could be violated with impunity—and would not this one fact do more than anything else could do to insure lasting reconciliation at the South?

4. Would not Gen. GRANT's election be the strongest possible guarantee that our foreign affairs would be conducted with honor, with prudence, and with the aid of the very best minds of the country?

5. Would not the election of Gen. GRANT give us grounds to expect a greater progress than has even now been made in the direction of civil service reform; and is it not true that the President has already done for this reform more than Mr. GREELEY dares to promise to do?

6. Finally, would not the election of Gen. GRANT over the desperate coalition formed against him, be likely to result in the disintegration of the Democratic Party, in the practical withdrawal of all opposition to the results of the war, and in greater attention from politicians generally to the material wants of the country?

These are questions which every intelligent man can answer for himself, and it is the duty of such men to do so. There never was a canvass where the right way for men who are not extreme partisans, but are careful citizens, who seek the real interests of the country, was so plain.

What all Citizens Should Think About.

Every man's reputation receives a color from the character of the place in which he lives. The impression thus created may, in the case of a particular individual, be very incorrect. It often is so. But correct or incorrect, it exists. We might give a variety of illustrations of this, but they are not needed. The principal is so obvious and universal that every one's observation and experience will at once supply instances of its application.

If the Reform movement in this City shall fail, and the Ring be reinstated in power, every New-Yorker, when away from home, will be known as coming from a City where swindling in sums of millions of dollars is, with the full encouragement of a majority of the voters, carried on in open day, with scarcely an attempt at concealment. The frauds which the reform has checked were bad enough for the reputation of the Metropolis and its inhabitants, but their effect in this respect was slight compared with what that of their renewal would be. The familiar saying "if a man cheats you once it is his fault; if he does it again it is your own," will be felt all over the country to have a very forcible application to the people of New-York. For what the Ring have hitherto done, the Ring themselves have been principally blamed; for what they may hereafter do, if replaced in office, the fault will be laid, and justly laid, at the door of the tax-payers. The first frauds, it may be said, and with considerable truth were perpetrated before the people had any warning of their extent. But this cannot be said another time. If the money of the City is again paid away by millions for things which are never received, or which, at best, are worth but a fraction of what is charged for them—if hereafter all that certain officials have to do, when they want large amounts to put into their own pockets, is simply to take them, the community outside the Metropolis will look much more at the agency of the voters in the matter than at that of the Ring.

There ought to be throughout the United States and throughout the world, a dignity connected with the character of an inhabitant of New-York second to that pertaining to the character of an inhabitant of no other city on the face of the earth, and everything that might by any possibility tend to impair that dignity should be a matter of profound and earnest interest to its citizens. The pecuniary loss, if the Reform movement shall fail, will be very great—great enough, perhaps, seriously to embarrass a City of even the immense wealth of New-York, for no man can say what the Ring, if emboldened by the defeat of the reformers, may not attempt. But, heavy as that loss will be, it ought to be looked upon by our citizens as a trifle compared with the injury of the City's character. Every man that has a home here should feel that the honor of New-York is a thing which personally and closely pertains to himself. Every effort he can make to guard that honor, should be considered not merely a duty, but a privilege. The renewal of such scandalous transactions as were perpetrated when the Ring was in power, should be regarded by him not only as a disgrace to the City, but as a discredit to his own character as a citizen. We hear more of this feeling here. If it prevailed as it ought to prevail, that as it doubtless some places manifest itself, the adherents of the Ring would next Tuesday meet with a rebuke so emphatic, that there would be no cause for apprehension that even an attempt would be made by them, at the election of 1873, to regain their sway.

There is another point deserving of attention in connection with this topic. A nation is known abroad, to a very great degree, by the character of its principal city. The United States and its inhabitants are judged of in Europe, very much by what is read and heard in regard to New-York. If our Municipal Government is conducted in such a manner as to be a disgrace to civilization, and an offense to the most ordinary principles of common honesty, Americans abroad, from whatever part of the Great Republic they come, will have to suffer for it. The bad conduct of a few of our States, many years ago, in regard to their pecuniary obligations, was spoken of in Europe as American repudiation; and Americans, though from parts of the country which had nothing whatever to do with this conduct, felt keenly its effects. A riot anywhere between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, is referred to as an American riot. And if the largest City on our continent, and the one incompatably best known in Europe, shall be governed by the Ring, nothing can prevent our countrymen abroad from being continually mortified by hearing that Ring alluded to as the kind of men whom Americans voluntarily place in their important Municipal offices.

The Late John A. Griswold.

The Republican Party of this State has sustained a heavy loss in the death of Mr. JOHN A. GRISWOLD, of Troy. He was one of our stanchest friends—a man who firmly, we may almost say religiously, believed in the principles and objects of the Republican Party, and who would at any time have made heavy sacrifices to insure their success. The same shrewdness and perseverance which he brought to bear upon his private business, he was always ready to apply to the task of maintaining his political principles, and defending his associates. We have seen, during the last few months, conspicuous and memorable instances of the readiness with which some men can falsify their entire political career, upbraid their friends of a lifetime, and denounce every opinion they ever held. Selfishness and treachery seem to come naturally to men like REUBEN E. FENTON and DE WITT C. LITTLEJOHN—not to mention others of still greater pretensions. Mr. GRISWOLD was a man of a very different stamp. He was always true to his convictions, and was guided by as fine a sense of honor as was ever entertained by a man in public life. When in Congress, at a troubled and embarrassing period, he showed the greatest tact and good sense, and would have saved some of his friends from great mistakes if they had followed his advice. In 1868 he was certainly elected Governor of the State, but was counted out by the infamous system of fraud which Tammany had by that time perfected. The Tribune always declared, until this year, that Mr. GRISWOLD was duly elected—but now that it "responds to Tammany," it is of opinion that the Democratic candidate fairly won.

We are deeply grieved to speak of Mr. GRISWOLD's career as one that is closed. He had great opportunities of usefulness before him—and in his private position his life was very precious to his own family and to his friends. Few men had so many friends or so few enemies. He was always welcome wherever he went—a man who carried with him a fund of cheerfulness and good humor, which were irresistible in their influence, and which made him a delightful guest at every table and in every household. He was in all respects a true and honest gentleman, a man of a type never too common, and less common now than ever. Our regret for his loss will be shared by every one who knew him, and with this regret will be associated a deep feeling of sympathy for the wife and children who have been bereaved under unusually sad and distressing circumstances.

The Seventh Congressional District.

THOMAS J. CREAMER is the Tammany candidate for Congress in the Seventh District of this City. His opponent is CONRAD GEIB, the standard-bearer of Republicans and Reformers. Between these two men there should be no hesitation in making a choice. CREAMER's record as an agent of the Ring cannot be forgotten so quickly. His advocacy of the Two per Cent Tax Levy bill alone should be a sufficient argument for his defeat, if there were not a hundred and one other acts of his official life of a more serious nature. When the bill in question was before the Senate in 1871, he was its principal advocate. He it was who argued that the citizens of New-York were anxious to confide their financial affairs to the tender mercies of TWEED, HALL, CONNOLLY and SWEENY, on the ground that, with four such incorruptible patriots, the revenue of the City would be carefully collected, and honestly disbursed. In reply to the remarks of Senator PARKER, among other things, he said:

"I support this bill because I believe that it is eminently a measure of reform, which has been introduced here in response to the demands of the people of New-York, by those who are responsible for the Government of that City, and who are trying to give it the best Government possible."

In like manner when the movement was set on foot to erect a statue to TWEED, in consequence of the eminent public services he had rendered to the City of New-York, TOM CREAMER was foremost among the contributors. He knew that in honoring the Boss he was honoring himself; for the acts which he had deemed in that benign person were worthy of perpetuation in bronze, he had been a sharer in to a considerable extent. Is this the man to represent a respectable district in Congress? Certainly not; and if the reform elements are not brought to bear in the very strongest manner, his defeat cannot be secured. There is not much time now for work; but whatever the result may be, the few days remaining must be used to secure the election of Mr. GEIB. CREAMER is in reality a corpse from the dead carcass of the Tammany Ring, and to check his further growth is one of the duties of the hour.

"Let Us Have Peace."

Now that the campaign is nearly ended, and the fierce strife of the last four months promises to give way to an era of quiet and repose, by the almost unanimous re-election of Gen. GRANT, the jaded ears of the public are unexpectedly saluted with the sounds of a fresh conflict that is about to spring up in the ranks of the defeated enemy. The motley followers of HORACE GREELEY, having utterly failed in their struggle through the hot Summer months to make any impression upon the Grant forces, and seeing the fortunes of war all against them, with inevitable and ignominious defeat staring them in the face, have now taken to fighting among themselves. And what is especially deplorable, is the fact that the new civil war threatens to be even more scandalous, bitter, and personal, if possible, than that which they have been waging against their common foe. The "Liberal" Republicans are charging the Democrats with having displayed no zeal in the fight, and with having deserted in flocks on the eve of every engagement during the campaign; while the Democrats, on the other hand, accuse the Liberals of having furnished no recruits to the rank and file of the army, but only a commanding general and a few subordinate officers, all of whom have proved themselves incompetent and worthless. Even the officers themselves have taken to abusing each other, and, in their mutual examinations and recriminations, have more than established the unfitness for leadership charged against them by the Democrats.

The National Committee denounces the State Committee as a useless ally in the fight, while the State Committee denounces the National Committee as worse than useless. ETHAN ALLEN thinks JOHN COCHRANE's bombast has made the Liberal campaign ridiculous, while JOHN COCHRANE thinks ETHAN ALLEN's employment of WOOD and BLUMENGER has made it infamous. Both of these worthies are loud in their complaints against their campaign orators and their newspaper organs. DOOLITTLE has belied his name and destroyed his reputation by doing too much, while SUMNER has imperiled his party and disappointed his friends by not doing enough. SCHURZ came into the ranks too late, and KELPATRICK came too early. Even GREELEY himself lifted up his voice too often in the campaign, while GRATZ BROWN lifted something else with scandalous frequency. But GREELEY's man Friday, the poor organ-grinder of the Tribune, comes in for the worst maledictions of all. It has grieved the heart of the Chairman of the National Committee, for many weeks past, that the "Liberal" cause should be so feebly supported in the "organ" that was expected to furnish irresistible thunder for the campaign. That the TRIBUNE should keep the Tribune continually on the defensive in the fight, was bemoaned at the Gresham Head-quarters as a burning mortification and shame. Hints of the general dissatisfaction expressed at the weak and puerile management of the Greeley "organ" have occasionally found their way into the "Liberal" Press for some time past, and now that the coalition is falling to pieces, and the great "Cincinnati movement" is about to collapse in disgrace, the curses that are heaped upon the head of our poor friend, the "Professor of Journalism," are open and loud. The last number of Wilkes' Spirit of the Times, a paper that "led off," so to speak, in the "Liberal movement," and, therefore, has a right to criticise those who have assumed to conduct the campaign, arraigns the Professor not only for incompetency to edit an "organ," but even goes so far as to impute treason to the cause. Listen to the following:

"The incomprehensible person who has had the management of the Tribune since Mr. GREELEY left it continues to do his best to betray the cause intrusted to him. His most conspicuous effort in this way is to make it appear, not only that the one-term principle is utterly unimportant, but to defend Gen. GRANT from any suspicion of aiming at despotic powers. His favorite mode of doing this is by calling the Grantites 'Two-term Men.' This, of course, conflicts directly with the views of the entire Liberal and Democratic Press, and confuses their main issue. The Spirit of the Times has repeatedly called the attention of the Tribune to the fatal effects of calling the Grantites a two-term party, and more than once privately urged, through some of Mr. GREELEY's nearest friends, that the expression be changed to that of 'Unlimited Re-electionists;' but this counsel had no effect upon the youth in charge. Even as late as last week he declared editorially that the Tribune had never been able to see that GRANT's re-election for a second term would lead to his usurpation of the public liberties."

After quoting a paragraph from the Tribune, illustrating its points, the Spirit of the Times exclaims: "If the man who does this at the head of a Greeley paper is not an idiot, then he is something worse." And further on it says: "If this representative of Mr. GREELEY cannot be restrained from such a mischievous use of pen and ink, and made to conform to the Cincinnati platform, the rest of us, who have newspapers laboring for Reform, had better withdraw from an incoherent series of endeavors." But the climax of indignation and contempt for the organ-grinder is reached in the following paragraph:

"Here was launched a cause greater than any known to our land since that of the first revolution, and equally worthy to invite the souls of men. Yet behold, through the unexpected evil of Mr. GREELEY's absence from his editorial post, we soon find the key-note of the canvass dropped, and the convictions of WASHINGTON, JACKSON, JEFFERSON, DE TOCQUEVILLE, HENRY CLAY, CHARLES SUMNER, CARL SCHURZ, LYMAN TRUMBULL, Gen. BANKS, Gov. CURTIN, and even HORACE GREELEY himself, supplanted by the shallow thought of WHITELAW REID! Mr. Master REID, does not see much danger in the re-elective principle! He, forsooth, does not agree with those who regard the President as harboring ideas of usurpation, or purposes hostile to the republican form of government!' and being thus satisfied, Master REID complacently issues his guarantee that GRANT and his followers are nothing more than two-term men."

Now it may be true that the distinguished Professor has failed to sound the "keynote" of the Liberal movement, but, we submit that some allowance is to be made for the difficult task he was set to perform. That he has wilfully betrayed his trust, we are loth to believe. Indeed, we think that any one who has gazed upon the likenesses of the Professor that have been portrayed, from time to time, in the matchless cartoons of NAST, must be convinced that he has fully appreciated the responsibilities of his position; and so far from having neglected his duty, his bent form, disheveled hair, and frenzied look tell, in words only too plain, that he has worked himself well nigh to insanity in trying to fulfill his mission. It may be true that he has sometimes sacrificed clearness to brevity—as great journalists are apt to do—and this will account for his use of the words "two term" in lieu of "unlimited re-electionists." But it really don't make much difference, and, on this point, we think the Spirit of the Times is hypercritical. At any rate, we are convinced that the Professor has done his best with the material he had, and, as we before suggested, some allowance should be made by those who now criticise his efforts, for the intrinsic weakness of the cause he advocated. And now, instead of waging an unseemly war with each other, holding one another up to contempt, and exposing their mutual shortcomings, we would advise the "Liberal" chiefs to "clasp hands over the bloody chasm," and let "bygones be bygones." They have all been wofully mistaken in their calculations; they started off on a movement that had no foundation but personal spite, and never had the slightest prospect of success; and the best thing they can now do is to call a meeting in some public place, and, in the face and eyes of the world, pass a unanimous resolution that they have all been sorehealed asses together. This would be the simple truth of the matter, and "truth is mighty and will prevail." Let us have peace.

Leather and Leather.

We are accustomed to look upon the barber as the most peaceful and innocent of men. He is rarely brought before the magistrate for offenses against the person of his fellow-man, and a radical barber of bloodthirsty views has never, heretofore, made an appearance, even during the most sanguinary of popular insurrections. The shoe-maker is, not unfrequently, addicted to confounding the cuticle of his neighbor with the leather which forms the raw material of his trade, and in such cases carves either with equal indifference. Indeed, we have the authority of Mrs. Nickleby for the theory that familiarity with leather develops the murderous instincts of man. Even the greatly-divided tailor, who ought, if there is truth in proverbs, to possess only a ninth part of the irascibility of the average man, is much more frequently in difficulties with the police than is the barber. To the latter the timid citizen, who lives in dread of the burglar and the highwayman, fearlessly bares his neck, and feels without a touch of timidity the rasping of the deadly razor.

To him, also, the decrepit dean, in whom age and indigestion have played havoc with the nervous system, calmly submits his head, and serenely sniffs the odor of his singeing hair, heedless of the burning possibilities of the heated curling-tongs. And, yet what wide-spread massacre and comprehensive torture the barber could inflict were he so disposed! Fancy a league of communistic barbers, sworn to avenge themselves upon their prosperous and presumably aristocratic customers. On a given day, by a nearly simultaneous accident with the tongs, they could reduce the majority of New-York's young leaders of the "German" to a painful and pitiable condition of brown-paper plasters, and plunge them, so to speak, in cooling lotions. Or at, say precisely half-past nine on any appointed morning, a concerted sweep of the tonsorial razor might murder half the substantial business men of the City. This is, indeed, a terrible picture, but it is due to the peaceful instincts of the barber, or perhaps to the soothing influences of constant association with soap, that it has not, long since, been made a more terrible reality.

It is with just apprehension that our readers will learn of a riot which has recently taken place in Paris, and in which barbers were alone concerned. It compels us to face the possibility that the Parisian barber has suddenly changed his nature, and, abandoning the peaceful habits which have made him unique among Frenchmen, has determined to emulate the violent tactics of the sanguinary shoe-maker. A master-barber having employed two German assistants, his shop was immediately beleaged by three hundred excited barbers, brandishing the fiery tongs and the glittering razor, and fiercely demanding, under pain of instant death, that the two obnoxious Germans should be discharged. That the rioters carried their point is not a matter of much consequence to us, but the sudden outbreak of a riotous disposition on the part of the Parisian barber is full of alarming possibilities. Should the same spirit infect barbers of other cities, all security in shaving would vanish, and no man could enter a barber's shop without the fear that he might be subsequently carried out, his ears docked with cruel shears, his temples scarified with red-hot tongs, and his throat fatally cut by the murderous razor. Should these evil days arrive, men would no longer speak of the soothing influence of soap, but would mournfully admit that the homicidal leather which impels the shoe-maker to crime had been at last rivaled by the maddening lather, urging the once peaceful barber to visit with torturing fire and slaughtering steel the persons of the prosperous public.

Bicycles.

The utter failure of the velocipede as a substitute for the saddle-horse is just now emphasized by the fact that, in the present dearth of horses, no one has alluded to the velocipede as a possible solution of the problem how the business man is to reach his office, in case the cars and stages should cease running. It is true that a gleam of hope has thrummed the sadness of those injudicious persons who, four years ago, built or bought hundreds of velocipedes, which they have never been able to sell. They have now exhumed a few of these machines from the cellar and garret, and placed them in show-windows with seductively low prices affixed to them. Still, nobody buys them, and it is safe to say that nobody will, so long as the cause which originally prevented the velocipede from attaining popularity among us still remains.

The failure of the velocipede was not due, as many suppose, to any inherent defect in the machine. It could easily be managed in streets not excessively crowded with vehicles, and though some effort was required to set it in motion, it could be ridden with comparatively little exertion. Of course, more strength was needed to make a single revolution of the driving-wheel than is exerted by the pedestrian in making a single step, but once one turn of the driving-wheel propelled the velocipede nearly three yards, while the pedestrian gained but about twenty inches in a single step, it is probable that the rider of the velocipede traveled over a given distance with less effort than the pedestrian.

The real cause of the failure of the velocipede was the tyranny of the small boy. This shameless and exasperating mouthpiece of crude and unreasoning public opinion crushed out the velocipede, and drove its patrons into the obscurity of back yards and private piazzas. Whenever a man presented himself on the street, mounted upon his bicycle, the small boy, multiplying himself in the appalling manner which is his habit on occasions when his presence is particularly undesirable, surrounded him like a poisonous cloud. Shut out from the sight of his fellow-men by the crowding and clamorous foe, the velocipede-rider was exposed unaided, to the jeers and insulting comments of his tormentors. His style of riding was ridiculed; his dress, and especially his boots were openly disparaged, and contemptuous wagers were loudly laid upon his probable mental condition. The bravest rider quailed before this ordeal. No man would consent to ride even the finest Arabian horse in existence were he to be surrounded with hundreds of shrill-voiced enemies, shouting, "He can't ride!" "Hi! Look at his boots once!" and betting peanuts in support of the proposition, "He's afraid of falling; see how pale he is." Much less would any man brave such a trial in behalf of the possible pleasures of bicycle riding. The small boy banished the bicycle so thoroughly that no one now dares even to mention the machine that called forth such universal juvenile reprobation. It is only by force of numbers that the small boy can be overcome. Had the riders of bicycles gone forth in companies of fifty or a hundred, they would have mutually encouraged one another, and thus defied the sneers of the small boy until the velocipede had lost for him its novelty, and consequently its interest. Had this plan been adopted, we should now find the bicycle a general favorite, and we should look to it as a possible means of temporarily supplying the dearth of ordinary means of convevance.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

To the Committee of Seventy:

GENTLEMEN: On the 21st inst., the Republicans of the Twentieth Assembly District of this City voluntarily tendered me their unsought and unexpected nomination for member of Assembly. On the 25th inst., the Committee of Fifty appointed, at a reform mass-meeting, held at the Cooper Institute in September last, approved that nomination and subsequently recommended like action on the part of your Committee. Feeling highly honored by these marks of confidence from those who were faithfully laboring for greater purity in Government, and heartily sympathizing with their efforts, I did not feel at liberty to refuse the proffered nomination, even at the sacrifice of personal preferences. Since my acceptance, I have learned with some surprise that your Committee, at a meeting on the 29th inst., when only twenty-eight members were present, voted to approve the candidate of Tammany Hall in that district, Mr. John D. Coughlin.

The reasons given for this action by several members of your Committee are two-fold—first, that the Committee had already favored too large a proportion of Republican candidates; and secondly, that my father, Mr. George Opdyke, had opposed the City charter proposed by your distinguished body last Winter.

As your Committee was formed as a non-partisan body, the first reason seems inadmissible, since in this view you should select the best candidates, entirely regardless of their party affinities. As to the second, let me say that in this case I am willing that the sins of the father should be visited upon the son. If it be a sin to criticise any action of your Committee, I am not guiltless. While I have always appreciated the high motives actuating the Committee of Seventy, I am not one who places his conscience or his vote in its keeping. In my judgment, it has happened that the wisdom of its action has not been in proportion to the excellence of its intentions, and I await the final judgment of the citizens of New-York as to the infallibility of its decisions. I believe that its proposed City charter contained such radical defects that no officials, however able and pure, could have achieved good government under it; and that it was therefore the duty of every true friend of Municipal reform to labor for its needed amendment.

I believe also that the character of the Committee's selections of candidates last year for municipal offices, was, not such, in all cases, as to make its approval a trustworthy guide to the friends of Reform. Unblemished personal character and an unquestioned record, will prove a much safer guide to voters. These tests may be fulfilled in Mr. Coughlin's case, but not having the pleasure of his acquaintance, and not being able to find his name, occupation, or address in the Directory, I am not able to inform myself in this respect.

Under the circumstances, I am impelled not to submit to the attempted ostracism, and I accept the challenge to seek the suffrages of the citizens of the Twentieth Assembly District, although in opposition to the choice of your Committee. I know that I can without fear invite a scrutiny of my record as a citizen, and as a member of the Municipal Government in former years, and it will now rest with the voters of the district to decide between the three candidates before them, and by their decision say whether a private citizen may not differ in opinion from your powerful Committee, and yet be a sincere and honest Reformer.

Yours respectfully, WM. S. OPDYKE.
New-York, Oct. 31, 1872.

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Committee of Seventy.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I notice with surprise that in the Sixteenth Assembly District the Committee of Seventy have recommended for Member of Assembly, Peter Woods, the candidate of Tammany Hall. The other candidates nominated in that district are Nicholas Haughton, the nominee of Apollo Hall; Wm. Leimbeer, formerly State Senator, the Return and Republican nominees, and James Irvine, member last year until his expulsion, an independent candidate. To those who know all these men, and there are few in the district who do not, the choice of the Committee seems to indicate an unsuspected degree of blindness, or something worse. Has not this Committee about fulfilled its mission?

DEMOCRAT.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, Oct. 31, 1872.

What is Kernan Up For?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

It is perfectly patent that Francis Kernan was put up to save the Catholic vote for Greeley. Before the Rochester Convention, it is well known that one-half the Irish Catholic Democrats could not be held for Horace Greeley. After it was decreed that Hoffman had to go overboard, notwithstanding his flourish at Baltimore, it was determined that Augustus Schell should be the Tammany nominee for Governor. The State was manipulated accordingly, but the "Cheesepressers," on the one hand, and "Chappaquaska," on the other, took fright and combined to nominate Mr. Kernan. This, as I said before, was boldly designed to save the scampering Catholic Democrats, and possibly gain others who are not Democrats. This having been the design of Mr. Kernan's nomination, all upright and consistent Christians, Catholic as well as Protestant, ought to meet the indignity with scorn and resentment.

NO CHURCH AND STATE.

ALBANY, Wednesday, Oct. 30, 1872.

A Tammany Candidate for Assistant Alderman.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Permit me to say a few works through your columns to the voters of the Eleventh Assembly District (Twentieth Ward.) John Bennett is a candidate for Assistant Alderman in the above, and is working hard for his election. As this man is unknown to most of our good citizens, allow me to say a few words.

In the first place he is a stool-pigeon of John V. Gridley, (whom every one knows as a go-between of Tammany Hall and the Republican Party.) He formerly kept a billiard-room and gin-mill on Eighth-avenue, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets, and held two or three sinecures, one of which netted him $3,000 per year. Moreover he is a loafer and gambler. He kept about one year ago a dance-house in Twenty-fourth-street, which was frequented by both men and women of the lowest possible grade. And this man now comes forward and asks the people to vote for him.

Please give this an insertion in your valuable paper, as it will do much toward defeating this man, who, if elected, would be a disgrace to the position.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 30, 1872.

Not a Candidate for Congress.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I observe in your issue of today that you give my name as one of the many candidates for Congress in the Second District, and as the nominee of the National Democrats. By referring to my letter of the 16th inst., published in the Brooklyn Union, you will observe that I declined their nomination, through any ill-feeling toward them, as I believe them to be honest men, working to help secure the election of Grant and Wilson—but because my business takes me too much of my time to permit me to give the requisite attention to politics when the acceptance of the nomination would have necessitated. I have always been a Republican, and am so still. I heartily cooperate with my party in Brooklyn, and shall cast my vote for and lend my influence to support the regular candidate, Mr. A. J. Perry.

JOHN F. HENRY.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, Oct. 31, 1872.

York County, Pennsylvania.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The Tribune, last week, expatiated at some length on the corruption carried on in our good old Commonwealth, and, among others, cited that of York County, very innocently (not ignorantly) forgetting to mention that these very men who now hold the York County reins are, to a man, friends to the Greeley movement. Messrs. Greeley and Reid may succeed in deceiving those of their readers who live away from such scenes of corruption, but some of us are not yet asleep. Both York and Cumberland Counties are slowly but surely throwing off their Democratic yokes, and will, ere long, be found in the sunlight of a Republican administration.

ALLEN, Cumberland County, Penn., Tuesday, Oct. 29, 1872.

What His Constituents Think of Mr. Hunted.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your course with reference to Mr. James W. Husted and his renomination for the Assembly is most cordially indorsed by the people of his district, of which I am a resident, though temporarily stopping here. At his first election, four years ago, he enjoyed the reputation of being an honest man, and in his duties at Albany the ensuing winter he acquitted himself quite satisfactorily. Until that time a custom was prevalent in his district to elect no person for a second consecutive term; but by means of open, shame-faced bribery at the nominating Convention and at the polls, he succeeded in foisting himself upon the people for a second term; and although some of the most prominent Republican journals have refused to support him since that time, yet he has succeeded in securing his annual election up to the present by a recourse to the same means which he used in 1869. During his successive terms in the Lower House he has not only affiliated with all the rings and cliques that afforded any prospect of pecuniary emolument, but has continually neglected affairs in his district which demanded his attention. His course in this campaign has been decidedly wavering. Just after the Cincinnati Convention he privately announced his intention to support Greeley. But, for some unexplainable cause, he has concluded not to go where he belongs by properly belonging. The resolution passed by the Nominating Convention indorsing his course for the past four years, reechoed in no manner the sentiments of the people. His constituency are thoroughly disgusted with him, and if he secures his re-election in the present canvass, it will only be by bribery and a lavish expenditure of money. The people should treat him as a common enemy. For my part, I shall endeavor to do my duty, both at the polls and elsewhere, and secure for him a defeat that he so justly merits.

A TRUE REPUBLICAN.

FORT EDWARD, N. Y., Tuesday, Oct. 29, 1872.

Prof. Pepper's Second Lecture on Light and Optical Illusions.

Steinway Hall was well filled last night to hear Prof. Pepper on light, and to see the numerous strange illusions which the clever lecturer introduces into his subject. Across the hall a platform had been erected, on which were various philosophical instruments. Prof. Pepper is a gentleman of middle age, with that peculiar complexion which resembles Mr. Dickens, and has a clear and distinct voice. He commenced by paying a high compliment to Prof. Morse, and the admirable methods of American instruction, and declared that though there might be special apparatus in single European institutions which might excel those in the American schools of learning, nevertheless the collections he had seen here under one roof surpassed anything for completeness he had seen abroad. To prove how hasty he esteemed our schools of science, he had determined to leave a son of his here to finish his studies. He spoke of refraction, reflection, polarized light, but dwelt most on that remarkable trait called persistence of vision, or the faculty the retina has of retaining the object even after the material object had been removed or the eyes closed. The two theories of light—the corpuscular and the undulatory—were then very clearly explained. The wave-motion was shown by means of an oxy-hydrogen light under a shallow sheet of water, the reflections of the waves and their beautiful motion being thrown on the ceiling of the hall. Returning to the persistence of vision, Prof. Pepper explained how, when you gazed at the sun, after closing the eyes the form of the sun remains imprinted for a long time in the mind. He showed that this could be produced by artificial means. The room being darkened, portions of magnesium were burned, with sudden flashes, and the audience saw specula. In the same way bits of magnesium wire were burnt, a rotary motion being imparted to the wire, and on its extinction, for some time afterward, the persistence of vision was sufficed, the form of the coil showing itself in various colors to the audience. The power of retention of light, the

OBITUARY.

Hon. John A. Griswold.

The death of Mr. Griswold occurred at 7½ P. M. yesterday at his residence, near Troy, after an illness of several weeks. During the early part of yesterday unmistakable evidence of improvement in his condition was visible, and his case began to be considered not utterly hopeless. A less favorable turn in his disease set in soon afterward, from which he was too weak to rally, and he gradually sank under it. His wife and daughter, who arrived home from Europe at 1:40 P. M. Wednesday, were present. Mr. Griswold's family consists of a wife and six children.

John A. Griswold was born in the town of Nassau, Rensselaer County, N. Y., in the year 1817. While in his boyhood, his home was with his relative, the late Major-Gen. John E. Wool, in the City of Troy. His first connection with business was found in a wholesale drug store, but he finally embarked in the manufacture of iron from the native ore found in the neighborhood of Troy in such vast quantities. In 1857 Mr. Griswold became a large owner in the iron mills of Troy, and from that time the business grew to great proportions under his management and direction. The Bessemer steel process was the means of still further extending the business of the Troy mills, as Mr. Griswold became the owner of the Bessemer patents for this country, he being also the first among American manufacturers to recognize the importance of the invention. So great was the business in the mills over which Mr. Griswold had control that his income was a very large one, and he became, during the past few years, one of the richest iron masters in the Union.

During the early part of the war Mr. Griswold evinced his stern loyalty to the Government by building the first Ericsson monitor at his individual expense, taking the risk of being repaid if the novel vessel proved a success. Had it not been for his belief in the feasibility of Ericsson's idea, it is very probable that our Government would never have secured so important addition to its navy.

Mr. Griswold's active mind naturally carried him beyond the routine of iron and steel making, and his fellow-citizens made him Mayor of Troy in 1862. Thus, entering the political field, he received the Democratic nomination for Congress in 1867, but was defeated by his opponent, Hon. A. B. Olin. In 1868 he was again nominated for Congress as a Democrat, and elected by a majority of 1,287. While in Congress Mr. Griswold was a war Democrat, and earnestly supported the Government in its efforts to put down rebellion. This course led to his being made the Republican candidate for Congress in his district, in the year 1869, and he was elected to his seat by a decided vote. As the expiration of his second term the Republicans of Rensselaer County again nominated and elected him their representative. During his Congressional career of six years Mr. Griswold served on the Committee on Naval Affairs, and on the Committee of Ways and Means, being conspicuous at all times for his unswerving loyalty and earnest condemnation of treason. That period was a marked one in Congress, and he always held a prominent place among the leaders in the House. In the year 1868 Mr. Griswold was nominated by the Republican Party in this State as its candidate for Governor against John T. Hoffman, and was undoubtedly elected, but was counted out by frauds. This closed Mr. Griswold's political life, as he declined to run for any office, preferring to attend to his private business.

The Horse Epidemic.

What will be the effect of even a temporary withdrawal of the horse power from the nation, is a serious question to contemplate. Coal cannot be hauled from the mines to run locomotives—farmers cannot market their produce—boats cannot reach their destination on the canals—bills drawn against Western shipments will be protested—merchants will become alarmed at the non-appearance of customers—panic will seize the community, and, aside from the many millions to be lost in the value of horses, the most disastrous unsettling of values is more than probable.

The disease seems to be without precedent. Is exhibits itself in three forms—catarrhal, rheumatic and gastro-erysipelatous—all termed by veterinaries epizootic influenza. To prevent the disease, the well animals must not now be hard worked. They must be kept on soft food—like bran-mash, carrots and salted hay—not allowed to drink cold water—warmly housed and well blanketed—have plenty of clean bedding, and rubbed with proper stimulating emollients.

Those which are sick, in addition to the above, should be given warm flax-seed tea, muriate of ammonia, belladonna or aconite, and sweet spirits of nitre. The nostrils and eyes must be kept well rinsed with pure warm water, the windpipe, throat, chest, belly and loins bathed and wrapped in emollients. And for this, nothing seems to have such wonderful power as Centaur Liniment. It is penetrating—is quickly absorbed by the system, and acts alike on the glands, muscles and lungs. It is a certain preventive, and superior to opodeldoc, turpentine or capsicum. Well horses thus treated will not take the disease, and in stables where four-fifths of the horses have been attacked this treatment has cured the most of them in a few days. It is estimated that there are now 50,000 sick horses in New-York, Brooklyn and Jersey City, and the disease is rapidly spreading throughout the country.—Tribune.

THE HORSE EPIDEMIC.—The disease now so extensively prevailing among horses is conceded to be a species of epidemic influenza. It ranks with the catarrhal disorders, and if promptly and properly attended to, need cause no alarm. The course of treatment adopted by the most prominent horsemen of Buffalo, Rochester, and elsewhere, and which, in fact, seems rarely to have failed, either in the prevention or cure of the disease, is as follows: Obtain at the drug-stores a package of CAUBER'S CAPSOLIO OINTMENT; apply this to the throat and chops, rubbing well in with the hand; after washing out the discharge from the nose and mouth, insert a portion of the same Ointment into the nostrils with a swab. Repeat these applications twice daily. The excellent cleansing and healing action of this Ointment soon checks the ulcerous discharges from the head, while its application to the bronchial and air passages extends the inflammation, relieves and quickly soothes the cough. Carefully pursue this treatment, keep the animal warm and the stable dry and well ventilated, and the diseased horses rapidly recover, while those unaffected are prevented from taking on the disorder.

CRUMM'S CAPSOLIO OINTMENT can be had of our principal druggists in large packages for stable use. Price $1.—Advertisement.

THE HISTORY OF A GREAT ENTERPRISE.—In 1854 the original incorporators of the WILSON SEWING MACHINE COMPANY embarked in the manufacture of Sewing Machines, and from that time to the present their time, talent, energy, and capital have been employed in making First-class Sewing-machines, with varied success attending their efforts. Its being their constant study to produce a Shuttle or Lock-stitch Machine that should be simple to handle, durable as steel and iron could make it, with unlimited capacity, unexcelled by any other machine, regardless of name or price, has at last brought them within the reach of all classes of people, and success has crowned their efforts in the production of the celebrated WILSON UNDERFEED SHUTTLE SEWING-MACHINE, which is the Lightest Running, Most Durable, and Strength possible for any sewing machine to attain, and they are the first and only first-class moderate-priced machines put in the market. WILLIAM HAW, JR., ONCE MORE.

And it is hoped for the last time. Not that Haw will be less obtrusive, but that other men may be more wise. No free organization recognizes him, not the Committee of Seventy, not Apollo Hall. He relies upon "regular nomination," by a packed committee, and what this may extort from party subordinates. Shame, that party should lend him such a power. And, most of all, shame that an earnest voter for Grant, Dix and Havemeyer should be nauseated by a ticket in the bundle for Haw. Thanks for intelligence and freedom by which to examine our tickets and reject the unworthy. Freedom—though "Jimmy Thompson," our servant, in the Custom-house, cries out in the meeting: "They growl at the 'one-man power,' but in vain. It is necessary in politics, as in war, and they shall know it." Is Haw to say this in Harlem Hall to-night? Men invited to the meeting were told he would not appear. Some one has blundered. But the election is at hand. Then Haw will be extinguished, and then let Thompson be blotted off the pay-roll, and so out of politics.

INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Short Central Trunk Route.

This road has been in operation from Indianapolis to Pekin, 112 miles, for two years. Its earnings have rapidly increased, and now are a little sufficient to pay all current expenses, interest on all its Bonded Indebtedness, including that made for its Extension, and, in addition, a dividend upon its Stock.

The Extension is 217 miles in length, and connects Champaign with the Mississippi River at Keokuk. It passes through a well-developed part of the State of Illinois, abounding in resources for a great business, and is must in a short time equal in receipts the other part of the Road with which it is consolidated, making a total line of 429 miles. Intimate western connections make this route the most direct between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

The entire road traverses a very fertile region, and possesses the best subsidy a road can have, viz: IMMENSE BUSINESS IMMEDIATELY AT COMMAND.

Under a fair valuation, the property of the older part of the road, above prior obligations, is fully equal in amount to the Bonds now issued, which are further and completely secured by a first and only mortgage on the extension, one-half of which is near completion, and the remainder will be finished early in 1873.

The Bonds are Seven Per Cent. Gold, $1,000 each, convertible into stock at par at the option of the owner, and may be registered without charge. PRICE 99 AND ACCRUED INTEREST in currency. Coupons, January and July 1, free of tax.

We recommend the Bonds to all classes of investors as an undoubted security.

NEW-YORK CITY NEWS.

The Argus City Advertising.

On the application of Lidia H. Brown to compel by mandamus payment of $27,278, claimed to be due for City advertising in the Argus, Judge Leonard has rendered a decision adverse to the claimant. The Judge decides that the audit of the late Auditor is not conclusive on the present Board of Apportionment, especially so in this case, as the claim was audited at over $27,000 for similar work to that for which the New-York Times received only $3,000, which of itself was a badge of fraud.

Arrest of a Broker.

On the night of Dec. 18, 1871, the Town Clerk's office at Middleborough, Mass., was entered by burglars, the safe blown open, and a number of bonds and securities deposited there for safe keeping were stolen. Among the number of securities taken were United States $100 bonds valued at $22,000, owned by Seneca Thomas, Benjamin C. Baker, and Betsy Harlow. Information having been received that these bonds had been cashed at the Treasury through the medium of New-York brokers, Detective Farley, of the Central Office, traced the bonds through Jay Cooke & Co., Scligman & Co., and other respectable firms, to the possession of Edward R. Kendricks, of the firm of Kendricks & Co., in Wall-street. Kendricks was arrested yesterday morning, and on being arraigned at the Tombs before Justice Dowling was held.

American Home Missionary Society.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the American Home Missionary Society was held yesterday, in the Sunday-school of the Church of the Ascension. From the report of the Financial Secretary and General Agent, Rev. W. A. Newbold, it appears that during the year, money or money's worth was sent to missionaries amounting to $1,879 09, an increase of $679 04 over last year.

The Children's Society is in a very flourishing condition, and through treasuries, medals, certificates, &c., had contributed $9,000 during the year.

The Treasurer's report shows that the receipts for the past year have been, for all purposes, $69,936 65; expenditures for missionaries, special objects, publications and general expenses, amounted to $48,464 93—leaving a balance in the treasury of $3,913 03, which included a balance from last year of $435 75. Fifty state societies have been commissioned during the year. The present number in the field is forty-four.

Board of Aldermen—The Mayor's Communication.

The Aldermen assembled at 3 P. M. yesterday, according to adjournment, the President in the chair.

After the reading and the adoption of the minutes, the following communication from the Mayor was read:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, New-York, Oct. 31, 1872.

To the Honorable the Board of Aldermen:

I respectfully return the annexed proposed ordinance, without my approval. These are my objections and reasons: Almost every city prohibits solicitation of passengers by persons who drive public hacks. Such prohibition seems everywhere to give satisfaction. It is conducive to the comfort of the people; it prevents disorder, contentions and breaches of the peace. The prohibition, indeed, is a just provision for the hackmen themselves. If puts them all on an equality. Their horses and vehicles are thereby put upon market to be looked at without an unctuousing competition of words. The effect of the proposed measure would be that any driver who has undesirable horses or uncomfortable vehicles, may, by the persistent industry of solicitation, ingenuity of address, not to say street-eloquence, out-manœuvre the more timid hackman (if by chance there be such an one,) who may possess better horses and vehicles, but less volume of language or a less measure of address than some competitor.

Ordinances are passed mainly to protect the greater number of the public. In a public aspect, the proposed ordinance, the Mayor believes, would be mischievous and productive of disorder. In justice to hackmen's associations generally, the Mayor must add that many of their influential members have requested him (so far as he has voice in the matter) to allow the existing ordinances to remain in force.

A. OAKEY HALL,
Mayor of the City of New-York.

On motion the communication was laid over and ordered to be printed on the minutes.

The Board then adjourned to Monday, Nov. 11, at 1 o'clock.

The Ward's Island Alleged Homicide.

Dr. Joseph Cushman yesterday made a post mortem examination of the remains of Louis C. Samuels, the inmate of the Lunatic Asylum on Ward's Island, whose death was alleged to have resulted from violence received at the hands of one of the keepers named McDonnell. The body of the deceased was found very much emaciated. There were no marks of violence upon the body, with the exception of a small and very faint ecchymotic spot, about half an inch in length, over the left wrist. On opening the skull slight traces of old arachnoiditis were discovered. The brain was found normal, and of good condition. The lungs and heart were found healthy. The abdominal organs were also examined, and found free from disease. The bladder was found distended. Death, in the opinion of the Doctor, was caused by exhaustion.

The result of the autopsy shows that the deceased lunatic was not subjected to the brutal treatment, which it was alleged he had received from the keeper who had him in charge.

People's Municipal Reform Association.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the People's Municipal Reform Association was held last evening at No. 907 Broadway, for the purpose of taking action with reference to the Mayoralty. A letter was read from Mr. Shaw, withdrawing his name as a candidate in favor of Mr. Havemeyer. A committee was then appointed to wait upon the Committee of Seventy, and assure them of the hearty support and co-operation of the Municipal Reform Association.

All Hallows Eve.

The practice of celebrating the evening before All Saints Day was one much more common among the Irish, Welsh, and Northern Scotch than with the Saxons or the Danes. Therefore, the fact that the merry games and pastimes which it introduced are preserved among Americans, is due to Celtic immigrants alone. In the Saxon part of England—that is to say, in every part save Wales and Cornwall—the only observance of All Hallows Eve was the consumption of lamb's-wool, a drink compounded of baked apples crushed in ale. Even this was not a Saxon beverage, but was an adaptation of the Celtic, for which milk was used instead of beer. The word lamb's-wool, which seems nonsensical, is a corruption of the Gaelic "La Mas Ubhal," or "Angel of Produce;" in fact, the Celtic Ceres and the whole festival was of pagan origin. It was one of the great Druidic seasons, February, May, August, and November, and was celebrated by the never-failing bonfires, and by bearing about blazing fagots suspended to poles. The early Catholic apostles in the Druidic countries found the people far too much attached to these observances to hope to annihilate them altogether. So they permitted them, on condition that all the heathenish parts should be omitted, and that they should be kept in commemoration of Christian saints. In this manner the festival of All Hallows Eve is connected with the memoried day of St. Peter ad vincula. Among the Druidic customs, the consumption of apples and berries and nuts, with milk, was strictly ex rerole, the word mas meaning berry, fruit, or grain. And as the Christians taught that the 1st of November was sacred to all saints, and the 2d to all souls, a murky conception of spiritual and ghostly things was introduced. Hence resulted a curious confusion of ideas, in which both trains of thought were blended, and the consequence was that all sorts of conjuring and divination with nuts and fruits became the occupation of the evening. The nuts, especially, were the grand exponents of the future. Each lad and lass would put on the bars of the grate, or among the embers of the hearth, nuts, representing themselves and their sweethearts. The nuts that bounced off with a loud pop were lovers not to be trusted, but those that burned in blue or white ash were the most faithful of their sex. Divinations with the apple (a fruit always held sacred to Venus) were also popular. The common way was to pare it carefully and then to take hold of the find by one end and wave it round the head three times. Then she ever were to be shut and the sacher had to throw it over the left shoulder. Whatever letter it resembled was the initial of the future lover's Christian name. Another way, much more awful, was to turn the back to a looking-glass and to eat the apple looking over the left shoulder backward. When it was half eaten the future lover would show his face in the glass. The apples so used were not ordinary apples; they had to be won either by bobbing the head in a pail of water and seizing them with the teeth, or by gaining them at the quintain. Here the apples were suspended by strings of wood, having lighted tapers at the other end. The contestants' hands were tied behind them, and as the apples swung backward and forward they had to grab for them with their teeth, at the imminent risk of having their curls singed by the twirling taper. For the maids there was a special divination. Three saucers were placed on the hearth, one filled with clean water or milk, another with dirty water and ends, and the third empty. The prior into futurity was driven from the room. Outside his eyes were bandaged, and he was then led up to the table. If he seized the empty saucer he was sure to get a wife; if he got the one with milk, his wife would be a maiden and well dowered, but if his adverse fate gave him the dirty water, then his wife would be all she should not. One way for a young girl to ascertain positively her future husband's appearance was to steal an egg, to boil it in water, to eat half the yolk and hide the white, to fill it up with salt, to place it in the left stocking, which was to be rolled up and tied with the right garter, and then the fatal bundle was to be placed under her pillow. All these things done in perfect silence, the future bridegroom was sure to appear in her dreams. This spell has never been known to fail, though it has often happened that those who tried it have never been able to remember their dreams.

Today is old Fools Day. It was changed to the first day of April.

Election Pools at Johnson's Lost Night.

Johnson's saloon, in the basement of the building at the corner of Broadway and Twenty-eighth-street, was crowded last night more than ever at the pool-selling on the election. The proportion of spectators was much greater than on former occasions, and there was a large sprinkling of notorious Tammany men, who came to stir up a little feeling for Lawrence. The pool-selling commenced with the Mayoralty, O'Brien leading off as favorite with $100, Havemeyer fetching $80, and Lawrence, under the stimulus of his Tammany backers, rising to the unprecedented figure of $55. This ratio remained for some five pools, and when by this time the money and courage of the tigers had disappeared, Lawrence fell quietly back to his old figures of $10, $12, and even $8. Johnson then jumped Lawrence with Havemeyer, and the two fetched $100 against $65 for O'Brien. In this kind of pool-selling O'Brien dropped after a few sales to $75 against $100 for the other two, thus making Havemeyer the favorite again. This betting was almost entirely confined to sporting men, the gentlemen present taking no part in it. The pool-selling being then shifted to the Presidential campaign, their eyes brightened and their faces flushed with excitement. They immediately took a hand. That Greeley would carry New-York City by 20,000 majority was sold also on level terms. That Grant would carry New-York State by 20,000 received, affirmative $100, negative $65. This pool became the favorite bet, and, after repeated sales, the negative crept down to $60. It is to be observed that on the first night Grant's majority was fixed at 20,000, and it is more than probable that pools will be sold even on his getting 50,000 before election day.

Working Men's Central Union.

A largely attended meeting of the General Committee of the Working Men's Central Union of the City of New-York, was held last evening, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, to receive the report of the Committee on Nominations, appointed at the recent County Convention. Mr. George W. Gibbons, the Chairman, in calling the meeting to order, said that Henry L. Clinton had received the nomination for District-Attorney, but he was unable to accept it, and would himself state the reason why.

Mr. Clinton was then introduced, and said that, though his nomination had been favorably received by Apollo Hall, his engagements, official and otherwise, prevented his acceptance of it. He was happy, however, to know that he could find a worthy substitute in William C. Whitney, whose talents were of the very highest order, and who was fully competent to fill the position of District-Attorney. Mr. Clinton said he was an earnest worker in the cause of reform, and he could better serve it by keeping himself free than by being a candidate and elected to office. He thanked the Working Men's Central Union for having tendered him the nomination, and introduced to the meeting Mr. William C. Whitney, who was received with cheers.

Mr. Whitney said if elected, they would never feel ashamed of him. The office of District-Attorney should not be so conducted that the lesser criminals only would be caught, and the greater ones be allowed to go free. Equal and exact justice to all would be his motto. [Cheers.]

Mr. John Heckler, from the Conference Committee, reported for ratification, the Republican national ticket, O'Brien for Mayor, Whitney for District-Attorney, Bedford for City Judge, A. Anderson for Justice of Supreme Court, and R. C. Van Vorst for Justice of the Superior Court. The following Congressional ticket was indorsed: Sixth District, A. G. Dunn; Seventh District, Conrad Geib; Eighth District, John D. Lawson; Ninth District, David B. Mellish; Tenth District, William A. Darling. A full ticket for Assemblymen, Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen also was ratified.

A letter from Gunning S. Bedford, accepting the nomination, was read; and, after listening to a few words of encouragement from James M. Heatherton, Chairman of the German Democratic Working Men's Association, the meeting adjourned.

Greeley Ratification Meeting—Breakdown of the Platform.

Last night a general ratification meeting of the Greeley and Brown ticket was held at the corner of Franklin-street and West Broadway. Judge Quinn presided. After the reading of resolutions indorsing the Greeley Republican ticket, the platform on which the speakers and friends were standing gave way suddenly, every one going down with the débris. Men and children screamed loudly as soon as they saw what had occurred, but fortunately no one was hurt beyond receiving a few bruises. A temporary platform was raised and the meeting continued. Among the speakers were Judge Hogan, John Fox, and others.

Tammany Hall General Committee—Preparing for Election.

A meeting of the Tammany Hall General Committee was held yesterday afternoon, Hon. John W. Chandler in the chair. A list of instructions directing voters how to vote for members of Congress in each district was read. Mr. Chandler said that the present election was one that called for all the energy of the electors, and every man should work to the utmost to elect their candidates. Mr. Kelly related his experience of the present campaign, and said that he had never seen so many enthusiastic Democratic district meetings. He believed that the entire Tammany ticket would be elected, and did not think the Apollo Hall candidates would poll 25,000 votes. The Apollo Hall Democrats were about to place in the field an electoral ticket totally opposed to the Greeley and Brown Democrats, with the intention of embarrassing voters; it was, therefore, necessary that all voters should examine their tickets before depositing their vote, to prevent mistakes. It was then specially requested that the members should do all in their power to make the meeting at the Cooper Institute to-night as successful as possible, and the Committee adjourned.

Preparing for the Election—Character of the Special Deputy Marshals.

Marshal Sharpe and his Assistant, Col. Robert Dea Anges, Chief Deputy Marshal, have completed their arrangements for preserving order on election day and preventing frauds at the ballot-box. The vacancy in the Chief Deputy Marshalship, in the Sixteenth Assembly District, was yesterday filled by the appointment of Col. John Beattie. The Marshals' instructions, printed in yesterday's Times, have been read and carefully explained to the 3,000 Special Deputies, and there is every reason to expect that, with a thorough understanding of their duties, there will be no trouble on election day. Col. Des Anges thinks that there has never been so respectable a class of men secured to do similar work at the polling-places, and gentlemen who never before took an interest in local politics, have, this year, asked for appointments to assist the marshals.

The Jersey City Bank Robbers—Disagreement of the Jury.

In the case of Chief MacWilliams and Detective Doyle, of Jersey City, the jury yesterday returned at 11½ o'clock and stated that there was no possibility of an agreement. Judge Depue then discharged them, and the counsel for the defendants moved for a reduction of bail, and it was fixed at $20,000 in each case.

The bank robbers, Proctor, Dennis, and Foley were then arraigned. Proctor and Dennis were sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment at hard labor in the State Prison. Foley's sentence was fourteen years, he having pleaded guilty.

The principal assembly will be in Apollo Hall, decorated for the occasion. Five stands have been erected in the surrounding streets. There will be an abundant supply of music and fireworks, and slates from the various Wards of the City will meet in the City Hall, attending with flags and transparencies. The Nineteenth Ward Club will drag a miniature ship, manned, and with a howitzer. W. C. Whitney, Samuel G. Courtney, H. L. Clinton, Wm. R. Roberts, Roswell D. Hatch, Joshua Sutherland, H. H. Anderson, Daniel P. Lyddy, Jas. Hardy, Adolph Kessler, Thos. J. Creamer, Wm. C. Robert, Fernando Wood, Judge Alexander Spencer, M. M. Pomeroy, Martin Nachtman and others are invited to attend and address the meeting.

A HEAVY JEWELRY ROBBERY.

An Old Offender and Escaped Convict Captured—An Impudent Professional.

Gustave F. Kindt and Victor Fico, both Belgians, employed in the factory of the Hackensack Jewelry Manufacturing Company, at Hackensack, N. J., were arrested, yesterday, charged with having robbed the safe of the Company of money and jewelry to the amount of $8,000.

About three months ago Kindt was employed to repair the lock of a safe adjoining the one that was robbed, and it is supposed that he, at that time, took an impression of the key, with which he, on the 17th of August last, opened the safe, and abstracted from it money and jewelry stolen.

On Monday last Mr. Thoms, President of the Company, called on Superintendent Keise and hinted that an officer might be sent over to investigate the matter. The Superintendent at once sent a detective officer to Hackensack. Mr. Thoms confided to this officer his suspicion in regard to Kindt, or as he was then known, "Capt. Marshall." The officer it appears, had previously arrested Kindt for a similar robbery committed at a watch factory in Brooklyn, for which he had been convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment at Sing Sing, but had escaped from the prison in less than two years after his incarceration. The officer had previously heard that Kindt has taken refuge in Hackensack, and when Mr. Thoms described "Capt. Marshall," upon whom suspicion rested, the detective recognized him as Kindt. The latter was then on a visit to Paterson, N. J., and on his return on Wednesday he was fully recognised and arrested as an escaped convict. An application was then made to Justice of the Peace Zabriskie for a search warrant, which was granted. The house of Kindt, alias Marshall, adjoining the factory, was then searched, and the officers succeeded in finding $600 in jewelry and $1,500 in money, which were fully identified. Kindt was arraigned before Justice Zabriskie on Wednesday and was committed for examination. Fico, who boarded at Kindt's house, was also arrested and held on suspicion of having been concerned in the robbery.

Kindt has a very eventful history. In 1867 he was in the employ of Messrs. Wheeler, Parsons & Co., watchmakers, on Fourth-avenue, Union-square, and while there, the safe was opened by means of false keys and robbed of $12,000 in watches, jewelry and money. No clue to the perpetrators of the robbery could be at that time discovered. In 1868 the firm was changed to the Brooklyn Watch Company, and they then occupied a factory in Brooklyn. On New-Year's eve of that year their safe was again opened by some person who had evidently obtained a knowledge of the combination, and this time $23,000 worth of jewelry, watches, &c., was stolen. Kindt was still in their employ at the time, and a short time before had been spent in watching for the thief, Mr. Wheeler, who was the principal man interested in the Company, summoned to his aid several New-York officers, who finally succeeded in fastening the guilt upon Kindt. It was then found that he had bored holes in a partition immediately in front of the safe, and, by the use of very powerful glasses, applied to these holes at such times as the safe was being opened for legitimate purposes, he succeeded, after weeks and weeks of failure, in obtaining the combination which unlocked the safe.

On searching his residence, property amounting to $17,000 was found. He was committed for trial on two charges of grand larceny, and on July 7, 1869, he was convicted on both charges, after a trial which lasted three days. Judge Troy sentenced him to ten years' imprisonment at Sing Sing. He remained in prison until Feb. 1, 1871, when he made his escape by sawing through a bar in the window of the machine shop and making his way by a boat lying near the wharf, in which some of his friends were waiting, and reached the New-Jersey shore. He next turned up in Hackensack. The examination in the case will be held in a few days.

BROOKLYN POLITICS.

An Enthusiastic Gathering of Colored People.

A very large meeting of the colored citizens of the Second Assembly District, Brooklyn, was held last night at the Bridge-street M. E. Church, between Myrtle-avenue and Johnson-street, under the auspices of the Citizens' Campaign Committee of twenty-one colored men. L. H. Putnam presided. Resolutions were adopted declaring that there was a seeming fitness in the colored people assembling, so as to utilize their influence in securing their rights; that they would on next Tuesday work with unturing effort to elect the entire Republican ticket, and strive to give their opponents a Waterloo defeat.

Eloquent speeches were made by Rev. Wm. F. Butler, Mr. Putnam, the Chairman of the meeting, Rev. A. N. Freeman, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Peter Downing, of Newport, R. I.

The Second Assembly District Grant and Wilson Tanners, who had been having a brilliant torch-light procession, entered. Mr. Israel Brown, the Marshal, was introduced and made a speech, after which Mr. Downing closed his remarks and the meeting adjourned.

A large meeting of the Independent Democracy was held last night, at Commonwealth Hall, over the Brooklyn Post-office, under the auspices of the Independent Democratic Central Association, of Brooklyn and Kings County. Spirited addresses were made by Gen. W. H. Morris, of Putnam County; Capt. J. W. Bryce, of New-Jersey, and Joseph Struthers, of New-York.

Taylor and Roberts, who the Committee of One Hundred have rejected as candidates for Commissioners of Charities, decline to be withdrawn, and will run as Republican candidates.

The meeting called by the Citizens' Reform Association of One Hundred, and appointed to be held last night at the Athenæum, corner of Clinton and Atlantic streets, failed through the want of sufficient notice.

The Second Congressional District held the last of their series of weekly mass-meetings last evening, at Latimer Hall, on Court-street. A band of music discoursed lively airs at intervals, and fire-works and Chinese lanterns added to the general display. Mr. A. J. Perry, candidate for the Second Congressional District, occupied the chair, and introduced Gen. J. T. Owen. Gen. Owen said that from the spirit and zeal which he saw displayed throughout the State of New-York during his canvass of it, he felt confident that John T. Hoffman's boast of 50,000 majority for Greeley would be reversed for Gen. Grant. He also said that he perceived that same unanimity and organization existed here that did in Pennsylvania, and which rolled up such a majority for Hartranft.

Mr. A. H. Dyett, the next speaker, referred to the local candidates, characterizing them as the very best of which could be selected.

After a short speech from John A. Taylor, Esq., the meeting dispersed, with repeated cheers for the Republican nominees.

The Republicans of the Fifteenth Ward, E. D., held a large meeting last night at their wigwam in Bedford-avenue, near Flushing-avenue. A brilliant display of fire-works and Chinese lanterns and general enthusiasm prevailed. The Hon. Robert Sewell and Horace Russel, Esq., delivered addresses urging all to vote the Republican ticket on election day.

The Sixth-ward Republican Association of the Twenty-first Ward held a ratification-meeting on Sumter-street, near Saratoga-avenue. Stirring speeches were made by Mr. Veit Von Gernsback and Hon. Jonn Oakey, after which the meeting dispersed with cheers for Grant and Wilson.

The Republicans of the Eastern District Brooklyn, assembled, last evening, at Hamilton Hall, to ratify the nomination of Gen. Paul S. Crooke, candidate for the Fourth Congressional District. Mr. Wm. H. Maddox, occupied the chair. Hon. Samuel T. Mandox, the first speaker, in the course of his remarks paid a high compliment to the military and civil record of Gen. Grant, and attributed the present tidal wave to its sound, practical, administrative policy.

After a spirited speech from Gen. Crooke and John H. Taylor, Republican nominee for Commissioner of Charities, the meeting dispersed.

The Seventy at Work.

The Committee of Seventy were busily at work in their rooms at the Everett House during yesterday and to a late hour last night, arranging for the printing and distribution of tickets, and sending out notifications to the persons selected to act as volunteers in assisting to run the ballot-boxes of the Committee on election day. No further indorsements of candidates will be made, the ticket being now complete, excepting a few Assembly districts, on the candidates in which the Committee was unable to pass in time for the names to be printed on the tickets.

St. Bartholomew's Church—Opening for the Inspection of the Public.

The new Episcopal Church of St. Bartholomew, erected at the corner of Madison-avenue and Forty-fourth-street, is now completed, and presents a magnificent specimen of the most chaste and ornate architecture. It is of the Romanesque Pisan type; is built of solid granite, with facings of the same, and has a frontage of 79 feet on the avenue, and a depth of 109 feet. The interior space is divided into nave and aisles, separated by heavy polished columns of Aberdeen granite of alternating red and gray colors, six on either side. From these springs a uniform arcade, and the roof is supported by slender convoluted arches, which bend over the nave and intersecting at a height of fifty feet, give to the whole an air of lightness rarely to be met with. There are six bays, with five arches to each, lighted above by clear-story windows. Each window, of stained glass of the richest ornamentation and design, is the gift of a member of the congregation, and but two new rosaits to be supplied by the liberality of other members. The frescoes are the work of American artists, and will compare favorably with the best productions of their European rivals. The lighting is accomplished by large ornamental standards of bronze, one to each alcove, and each containing nine gas-jets. There are also wall-brackets. The heating is on a new plan, and is calculated to afford ventilation.

Last evening the church was open to the inspection of the public, and an immense number availed themselves of the opportunity. Rich music was discovered from the organ, which is one of the finest in the City, and cost $15,000. A new and splendid altar is being completed, and will soon be in position. A font of white Carrara marble, the gift of a lady, has been ordered, and is now being executed in London. One of the most tasteful and beautiful presents made consists of a valuable silver communion service, and the several pieces of it were subjected to an admiring criticism. It is composed of a wine-ewer, three patens, and two chalices, completed in the highest style of the silversmith's art. They were manufactured by Messrs. Starr & Marcus, of No. 25 John-street. The names of the architects are Renwick & Sands, and the total cost of the church building, rectory, and school, (not yet completed,) will amount to $210,000.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Certificates of Deposit Used as Money Illegal—Execution of a Murderer—Stamp Tax Decision.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The statement that the Comptroller of the Currency has given an opinion in reference to the issue by the national banks of certificates of deposit to circulate as money is unauthorized. The question has not been presented to him for his decision, though it has been rumored that some of the national banks had proposed to issue such certificates. If the question should be presented, there could be no doubt in regard to his decision. The law expressly provides for the issue of notes secured by United States bonds, at a rate not exceeding ninety per cent, of the amount of said bonds at the par value thereof; and section 23 of the act provides that no national banking association shall issue post notes, or any other notes, to circulate as money, than such as are authorized to be issued upon the security of United States bonds, as above stated.

THE STAMP TAX.

Commissioner Douglass today issued a circular in regard to the use of internal revenue stamps on Schedules A and C. The import of the circular and decision is, that on and after Oct. 1 all stamp taxes on instruments are repealed, excepting the tax of two cents on inland checks, drafts or orders drawn at sight or on demand upon a bank, banker or trust company, as of a large number of instruments antedated prior to the 1st of October, but not actually issued or delivered until on or after that date, the Commissioner holds that such instruments do not require to be stamped, but in view of the prima facie presumption of the delivery of an instrument on the day of its date, it is suggested that such instruments of the description in question some memorandum should be made, showing that they were not issued until on or after Oct. 1, 1872, so as to explain the absence of the stamps which the date would indicate were required.

THE RESERVE GREENBACKS.

A telegram was received here to-night, from New-York, giving a report prevalent there to-day, that the Treasury had issued five additional millions of greenbacks, of which one million is the truth, and about which there is no official concealment, that $4,000,000 of the reserve of $44,000,000, the issue of which the Treasury Department considers is left to the discretion of the Secretary, was made up of which the Assistant Treasurer at New-York was instructed to buy bonds and sell gold, apart from the usual monthly programme. This was on the 7th of October, more than three weeks ago. Since that time no further amount of the reserve has been used, nor is there the least probability that it will again soon be drawn upon. The transaction to which reference is made, was to meet an extraordinary contingency.

REDEMPTION OF MUTILATED CURRENCY.

The Postmaster-General has issued a circular for the information and guidance of parties remitting old, defaced, and mutilated currency by mail to the United States Treasurer for redemption, in which is stated the duty of Postmasters to register, without fee, all letters containing fractional or other currency of the United States sent to the Treasurer of the United States for redemption, and delivered to them for mailing under the regulation prescribed in the circular.

EXECUTION.

George W. Jenkins (colored) was hanged today, between 12 and 1 o'clock, in the jail yard, for the murder of his wife in May last, he having hacked her throat with a butcher's cleaver while she slept with her two infant children, and left her only after he had inflicted upon her body nine or ten terrible wounds. Jenkins two weeks before her death declared his purpose to cut her throat, which shows the murder was premeditated.
